POINTS OF THE NEWS.

THE CITY. Special high-power explosive, said by criminals to dynamite the Times building, traced to factory in North, the three buyers, who obtained it by deception, known, and officers sharp on trail of the murderers; grand jury way for deep inquisition to get at the perpetrators of the outrage and the "higher-ups"; four more of the charred and mangled dead taken from the ruins.

Local ministers denounce from the pulpit yesterday the perpetrators of the dynamite outrage at the Times building, and offer prayers for the bereaved families of the loyal men who lost their lives in the fire.

HIGHEST.

FEARFUL PERIL IS OVERCOME.

ENGRAVERS ON SIXTH FLOOR ESCAPE BY ROOF.

One Swings Across Narrow Street on Telegraph Wires, Others Crawl to Safety Over Ladder Bridge Swinging From Hands of Rescuers—Only One of Them Burned.

Among the many marvelous escapes from the horrible deaths which overtake so many of the men in the Times Building when it was destroyed by dynamite, were the engravers, who were at work on the top floor. So terrific was the explosion that the sixth floor heaved up and broke and ink from the basement was scattered over the men.

And then the flames came, seemingly with the explosion, and Harvey Coleman was burned about the face, where he stood horror stricken. The next moment there was a rush for the door leading to the basement. But on the fifth floor the flames barred progress.

George W. Long, foreman of the engraving plant, led the way to the roof for the Baumgardt building and then went back to see that all had got out. Through the thick smoke they made their way to the alleyway which separates the building from a rooming house and there they called for help, which came from across the way.

Someone got a ladder to bridge the narrow gulf between the buildings, but it was just too short. With one end resting upon the extreme edge of the roof while men held the other end, one by one the engravers crawled across to safety.

All but one. Huber Bruce, after reaching the roof, became separated from his comrades and just where he hit the alleyway he found a telegraph wire spanning the area. Over this he went hand over hand, and in safety, through the falling debris and smoke. The others in the engraving department who escaped are P. L. Seebald, Otto Lange, Edward Ball, Harry Anderson and Charles Seebald.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

Only the Family and Intimate Friends of Elder to Attend Last Rites.

The funeral services over A. Churchill Harvey-Elder, the assistant city editor of The Times, who was fatally injured in the explosion Friday night, will be held at the Bresee chapel, No. 1331 South Figueroa street, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, according to present arrangements. The funeral will be private, only members of the family and nearest friends attending. The burial will be in Rosedale Cemetery.

A broken-hearted little woman was met from the train yesterday morning at the Southern Pacific station when the Owl rolled in from San Francisco. She was Mrs. Churchill Harvey-Elder, widow of one of the central figures in that flame-swept building which deprived The Times of so many faithful workers.

Mrs. Elder was in San Francisco when the news reached her, having gone there from Honolulu, where she and her husband lived for two years. She was so prostrated by the shock of grief that she was barely able to make the journey to Los Angeles and was taken to the Clara Barton Hospital on her arrival.

A. W. Harvey, the grandfather of Harvey-Elder, is in a critical condition at his home in Whittier as a result of shock upon hearing of the sudden death of his grandson. Mr. Harvey is over 70 years of age and one of the pioneers of the Quaker City. When he was told of the tragedy he broke down and has been in the care of physicians ever since.

FLAG ABOVE THE EAGLE.

AT HALF MAST FOR DEAD.

The Stars and Stripes was raised today over the shattered wall that is all that remains to tell where the Times Building stood.

The old flagstaff still remains, charred and singed, above the seared old bronze eagle. The halyards, of course, were burned away.

Fire Chief Eley sent a book and ladder and the long rescue ladder was run out. One of the firemen climbed up and nailed the flag at half mast to the pole—that was as high as he could reach from the ladder, and that was as high as anybody could have had him reach; for the charred dead of the Times still rested beneath it.

There were tears in many eyes of the great crowd that stood in the street below as the flag floated to the breeze above the wrecked walls.

OFFICERS ON TRAIL OF DYNAMITERS; BUYERS OF EXPLOSIVE KNOWN.

High-Power Destroyer Traced From Factory in the North to This City, and Proved to Have Been Obtained by Deception--Ruins of "Times" Building Give Up the Dead.

About 1:30 o'clock this morning the force of workmen at the ruins of The Times building uncovered the bodies of seven or eight more employees who lost their lives in the explosion. The bodies were massed near the foot of the elevator well on the northwest corner of the building and from their position showed what frantic efforts the men had made to escape death. None of the bodies were recognizable on account of the debris and girders piled partly over them.

This morning a derrick will be installed to remove the girders, when the bodies will be taken out.

THAT THE TIMES BUILDING was wrecked with dynamite and more than a score of innocent lives sacrificed to labor-union vengeance is an established fact. The gas explosion theory began and ended in malice.

Evidence in the hands of the police, which is being followed thoroughly through the agency of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and the business men associated with that organization, tells where the explosive was purchased, who purchased it, and how it was brought to Los Angeles.

The chain of evidence leading up to its dastardly use in The Times building is being wrought link by link, and each hour welds the links stronger.

The committee of experts on explosives is unanimous as to the cause of the horror, though no vote has been taken and no official decision will be announced for a day or two. THE CAUSE WAS DYNAMITE. The committee, which was appointed by the Mayor, will not give its finding until the last vestige of doubt is eliminated. Its members still have a spark of hope unionism is not utterly without humanity.

Because of the indubitable facts developed by the investigation of the police, the business men, and their detectives, the Mayor yesterday increased his offer of a reward from $2500 to $10,000.

HOPE TO REACH THE "HIGHER-UPS."

Because of the certainty of the same discoveries the business men are preparing to subscribe a purse of not less than $50,000, and possibly $100,000, as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the cowardly crime. And "perpetrators" means not only the actual criminals who placed the fatal charge, but the "higher-ups" behind them in organized labor; for it is now certain that there were "higher-ups."

A dual investigation is being made. The police are pushing the official work under the direction of the Mayor, the Chief and the Police Commission. Yesterday afternoon W. J. Burns, the San Francisco detective, who came to the city to perform duties in connection with the convention of the American Bankers' Association, was called into consultation by the Mayor. The Chief of Police and Mayor Lissner were present.

The business men's investigation has been put in the hands of Earl Rogers, attorney for the industries which have been affected by the unionite disturbances for months. Behind him is a fund of $50,000 pledged by citizens of Los Angeles who are determined that the outrage shall be avenged under the law, and the shame and disgrace of Los Angeles removed. Rogers is thoroughly familiar with the unionite methods and commands an able staff of detectives versed in the inner circles of the various organizations, particularly in and around San Francisco.

EXPLOSIVE TRACED TO ITS BUYERS.

The most important links in the chain of evidence were found through the Du Pont Powder Company. It was learned through this company that the gelatine and dynamite sticks found in the infernal machine at the home of Secretary Zeehandelaar of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association were an unusual formula of terrible explosive power.

They were purchased by three men at the plant of the company at Giant, this State, September 20. This was made positive by an analysis of the sticks found here. This analysis is identical with the sticks so sold on that date. It is also an important fact that this was the only sale of explosive of this character recently.

When the inquiry was made for the high explosive the officials at Giant were particular in their examination of the purchasers, because of the unusual request. They required and were given the names of the three men. These names and also full descriptions, are now in the possession of the police.

The officials of the company also demanded where the explosive was to be used. The answer was that it was for the purpose of blasting rock and stumps at Auburn, Cal. The explanation seemed reassuring and the company delivered twenty pounds to the purchasers who paid for it in paper money.

TRAIL LEADS TO LOS ANGELES.

Information from Auburn yesterday clearly showed that the story told by the purchasers was a myth. No rocks have been blasted and no stumps removed there and no explosive was shipped in there. A thorough investigation established this.

It is also reported that the police have evidence that this twenty pounds of dynamite was shipped to Los Angeles by boat, being brought through San Pedro harbor.

The police are now working to discover the further progress of the trail, which leads right into the city.

The Mayor in announcing his increase of the municipal reward from $2500 to $10,000 said:

"I am absolutely satisfied that this explosion was purposely done. I am equally satisfied it was not done by local men. When I reached these conclusions I felt that there ought to be a large inducement to some one to come forward and give up the facts. I am insistent that this investigation be complete in every detail; we want not only the men who actually committed the deed but we want the men behind them no matter who they are or wherever they are. I mean the 'higher-ups.'"

GIGANTIC REWARD TO BE OFFERED.

That a gigantic reward will be offered today by the business men seems certain. Secretary Zeehandelaar, of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, said last night that there were many telephone messages yesterday urging a fund of $100,000 and offering generous subscriptions.

"So general does this demand seem to be," said he, "that I will take it up with the association and business men Monday morning, and I feel sure that the result will be immediate."

The Council is to meet at 9 o'clock this morning in special session, and it is possible that it may take action in increasing the fund appropriated Saturday. This was fixed at $25,000 but the members gave assurance that all that is necessary will be forthcoming. As the Mayor has already offered $10,000 reward, the Council may be asked to consider raising this to $25,000, and adding it to the big reward to be raised by the business men.

Taking the Martyred Dead of The Times From the Ruins

A pitiful scene repeated several times yesterday—undertakers receiving from the searchers the body of one of the many men murdered with dynamite and fire. This work is going on night and day. More than a dozen charred corpses still lie under tons of debris.

Physicians in attendance upon the persons who were injured gave out cheery news last night. They declared that each one is now out of danger, and that all of them will be able to leave their beds in a few days.

Until yesterday afternoon there were grave doubts as to the outcome of the injuries sustained by Charles Lovelace, country editor of The Times, as it was feared he had suffered internal injuries. But all such symptoms passed away.

The physicians say he suffered more from the shock of the disaster than from hurts physically administered. He was able to converse with his wife, who has been at his bedside at the California Hospital from the moment he was taken there.

His only complaint is that he had a ravenous appetite. The doctors say that this is a good sign that he is well on the way to recovery. It is expected that he will be able to be out by the middle of the week.

William Latta, a stereotyper, who was taken to the same institution, is also improved. Fred Campbell, the fireman who was crushed by a falling wall, is said by the nurses at the Angelus Hospital to be much better.

SHOWS SOLDIER 'STUFF".

S. W. Crabill, foreman of the Times composing room, has shown that he has in him the "stuff" which true soldiers are made of. His hands were terribly burned. As soon as he had permitted a city surgeon to hastily bind them up, he reported for duty. He worked twice the number of hours which is usually required of him, and then was practically forced to go home and rest.

The injuries to many of the others are painful, but none will suffer any permanent effects.

A careful compilation of the list of the dead did not change the number from twenty-one, as had been previously reported. One woman reported yesterday that she was sure that her young son was in the building at the time of the explosion, and that he had not returned home. A careful search was made for some one who had seen him in the newspaper office on the tragic night, but there was none who remembered him. As far as has been ascertained, he was not employed in any department.

There is one man missing whose name cannot be learned. Some of those who escaped saw him perish, but they were not acquainted with him.

The name of Harry Flynn, a linotype operator, who met his doom with many comrades, has been omitted from the previously published lists although he was reckoned in the total count. He was married, but had no children. His widow resides at No. 1351 East Forty-seventh street. He had just passed his thirtieth birthday.

No higher compliment could be paid to his memory than the expressions of those who were his companions in his daily work. He was considered one of the best operators in the employ of The Times. He had been with this institution just one year, but had shown such devotion to duty and such a desire to better himself that he had been selected as one who was in line for any advancement which might be made.

ALMOST CERTAINLY CREMATED.

It is now almost certain that all who are missing were cremated, and that their charred bodies lie in the ruins. Many bereaved ones may never be able to claim their dead. It is by rare chance that anyone can be identified. One father recognized all that was left of his son by a tuft of hair. The peculiarly-shaped skull of another told to whom it had belonged in life.

That some of the unfortunate men were torn limb from limb by the explosion and never knew how they were rushed into eternity is the conclusion of the authorities from the evidence they have found. Several were seen thrown in the air, by their comrades as they fled for safety.

A thigh bone was found lying on top of a steel girder yesterday. When the debris was cleared away from under the beam, the torso was uncovered. Several feet away small fragments of bones were segregated from the ashes.

In another instance the workmen came across a rib. They carefully sifted the debris, but could not discover anything which might once have been a part of a human being.

Several pieces of jewelry, and trinkets have been recovered. An Ansonia watch with a gold chain was found in the pocket of the wet and burned remnants of an overall jacket. A souvenir knife, which bore the advertisement of a morning newspaper, was also in the pocket.

The Coroner has carefully preserved everything which might give even slight clews to the identity of the remains which are disinterred. He is exerting every effort to give back to the widows and orphans their dead, for he realizes their burning anxiety to bury all that remains of those who were but yesterday loving fathers and husbands.

DENUNCIATION.

MINISTERS VOICE HORROR AT CRIME OF ASSASSINS.

From Pulpits Ascend Prayers For the Bereaved and Victims of Explosion Which Destroyed "Times" Building—Preachers Denounce Union Murderers and Anarchists Who Placed the Bombs.

In many of the city churches, ministers referred in terms of strong condemnation, yesterday, to the perpetrators of the outrage in destroying the Times Building and murdering and maiming the employees of the establishment.

Most of them were interpolated into sermons prepared before the outrage was committed, and were sufficient to place the speakers on record in abhorrence of the unprecedented crime. Others referred to it in feeling prayers for the comfort of the bereaved friends of those who went down to untimely death. In several churches, resolutions were adopted, expressive of the abhorrence of the congregations at the crime and their sympathy with the bereaved and injured.

Speaking under the head of "Assassins in Los Angeles," Rev. A. C. Smither, of the First Christian Church, made the following scathing arraignment of the perpetrators of the outrage:

"Los Angeles is today in mourning and disgrace; in mourning over a large number of her worthy people who have been slain by the ruthless hand of assassins skulking in the dark and seeking the blood of human beings; in disgrace before a civilized world because our fair city has permitted anarchists and bomb-throwers to remain in her bounds and commit one of the most dastardly deeds in modern times.

"As a public journal, exercising the rights of free speech, the Los Angeles Times has been a fearless defender of law and order and industrial freedom, and its relentless and persistent criticism of labor unions has aroused a bitter and unrelenting war against it by these industrial organizations. The indications are that some of the devotees of some of these movements, stung to the quick by the unsparing attacks of The Times, have retaliated with bombs and dynamite, and we stand aghast at this awful crime.

ANARCHISTS AND ASSASSINS.

"It is impossible to believe that the respectable laboring people of our fair city had any part in this awful crime. It is easy to believe that it was done by the anarchists and assassins who have wrought such shame in San Francisco, and who have declared their purpose to unionize Los Angeles. They have committed one of the greatest crimes in modern civilization.

"Into how many homes of honest, industrious, law-abiding people have come the shadows of death, as a result of this dastardly deed! Their folly, apart from this crime is most evident. Where the Los Angeles Times has had hundreds of friends, it will now have thousands; where it has had unsparing critics in the past, it will have admiring friends in the future; it will arise from its ashes more powerful than ever before.

"The cause of labor unionism will hereafter be associated in Los Angeles with thugs, bomb-throwers, anarchists and assassins, and suffer a blow from which it can not recover in years. These organizations of our city owe it to themselves to denounce to the utmost their awful crime; to put forth their greatest efforts to apprehend and punish the criminals, and to use all possible means to wipe away from our proud record as a city this foul stain. They ought to use all their power to maintain order and allay all passions engendered by the appalling crime. They owe it to themselves and to the community to repudiate the leadership of men of foul character and anarchistic proclivities, for the most dangerous enemy of life and property is the cowardly, skulking, anarchist, who fights in the dark with dynamite.

"Our fair city should use every possible means and spare no expense to bring these enemies of humanity and civilization to justice, and to see that they suffer the most awful punishment for this unspeakable crime. Every lover of free speech, of liberty, of home and fireside, should contribute his powers to the removal from our city of these enemies of our city's life.

"The daily newspaper is one of the greatest factors in our modern life. It is the courier of human achievement; an enemy of all crime. The fear of the exposure of crime is one of the greatest deterrents from evil. The newspaper ought to be a leader in all that makes for the betterment of the community and of the world.

"Whenever the public disapproves of the policy of a newspaper, the public can protect itself by refusing to subscribe for it or to patronize its advertising columns. To seek the destruction of property and of the employees of a great metropolitan newspaper by dynamite is an unspeakable crime. No denunciation or punishment could be too great for such enemies of human good.

"Let all the powers of the law and the community be commanded for their arrest and punishment."

THRILLING.

TRAGEDY BY WIRE.

DRAMATIC ACCOUNT OF UNSENT SPECIAL.

CORRESPONDENT IN NEW YORK TELLS OF TRYING TO REPORT AUTO RACE.

OPERATOR IN EAST TALKING TO TIMES OFFICE WHEN BOMB WAS EXPLODED.

"POOR OLD SAWYER WILL ANSWER NO MORE CALLS," IS FIRST NEWS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) The dramatic possibilities of an unfinished telegraphic message telling in words of agony of a crime in commission or of impending disaster to the transmitter, which have been frequently exploited on the stage and in the pages of fiction, were brought home in thrilling reality to a telegraph operator in the office of the New York Times and in death to another operator in the office of The Los Angeles Times in the early hours of Saturday morning, the very instant in which the office of the Los Angeles Times as destroyed by dynamite and fire.

But a few minutes previous to the explosion in Los Angeles a message had been received from the news editor of the Times there, to the news editor of the New York Times stating that the Los Angeles Times was planning to issue a special extra giving the details of the Vanderbilt Cup race at Minneola.

"Send us a good account of the race. At the crack of the pistol begin sending the actual scenes on the track, describing in detail any accidents as they occur," the message read.

In one previous it had been stated that the Los Angeles Times was making elaborate arrangements to issue an extra edition giving a full report of the race and the winners. A wire was placed for the morning's service at 2:30, eastern time. Operator R. L. Sawyer was selected as the man to copy the dispatch, for he was considered one of the best telegraphers on the Coast.

Here in New York preliminary arrangements were also necessary, and the New York Times assigned one of its men at the Vanderbilt race course to send in the report to its New York office. At 3:50 a.m. the story of the preliminaries, the arrival of the crowds and the chill that sent them scampering for calm nooks along the track began to come into the New York Times office, where it was to have been woven into a crisper story, to be sent to Los Angeles at 4:30.

At 4:00 a.m. came the last message from the paper, giving final instructions. It was also the last message from Operator Sawyer, the last he will ever send.

At 4:02, but an instant after this message had been finished, a harmless little click snapped over the wire, and it went open.

"Wire open," cried the operator in the New York Times office to the editor, who was busy but a few feet away, compiling the first dispatch for the then annihilated and famous Pacific Coast paper.

"Get after them quickly," was the editor's reply. "No time can be lost now; here's the first installment about ready."

But before he could hardly get these words out of his mouth, the main office of the Western Union at Los Angeles, which connects the wire to the newspaper loops, came in and cut the paper loop off. That, of course, closed the circuit again, and simultaneous with its closing the New York Times operator started calling "TS," the sign letters for the Los Angeles Times office.

He had made but a few calls when the wire chief at the main office came in on the circuit and informed him that he would never raise that office again, and "Poor Old Sawyer," as he mournfully put it, "will answer no more calls."

He stated that the paper had been blown up by a bomb, and that the building was then lying a mass of ruins that were fastly being consumed by a raging fire. He said that though it was six blocks away, from what he could see at that distance it looked to be an impossibility that any one could have escaped from the building with their lives.

AEROPLANES IN ACTION.

Three Curtiss Machines Make Short Flights to Try Out for Trip To New York.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Three aeroplanes arose today at once and engaged in a three-mile race around the mile course at the old Hawthorne race track. All were Curtiss biplanes and they were driven by Curtiss himself, Charles F. Willard and J. A. D. McCurdy.

Willard and McCurdy are entered in the Chicago-New York race, which begins next Saturday, and spectators watched them pit their skill against each other with considerable interest today. The maneuvering of the aviators will continue all week, and the actual race to New York for the $10,000 prize offered by the Chicago Evening Post and the New York Times begins next Saturday at 10 a.m.

UNDER TWISTED GIRDERS.

STRONG HANDS DIG TENDERLY.

PITIFUL FEW BODIES FOUND AS YET IN RUINS.

FIRST RECOVERED CORPSE IS THAT OF REAVES.

SOME THINGS DISCOVERED AID IN IDENTIFICATION.

Out of the terrible toll of brave and innocent lives which Saturday morning saw laid down at the post of duty to sate the insane spite and murderous venom of labor unionites, but a pitiful few bodies have come to light in the ruins of The Times Building.

Ever since the awful pit of death that made their unhallowed grave became cool enough to make work possible it has been filled with men toiling day and night to clear away the wreckage and uncover the bodies. Under direction of officials from the building and street departments, an average force of 150 men has been kept constantly at work. At their head is Superintendent of Buildings Backus and Street Inspector Mather. Cooperating with them are a score of patrolmen from the Central and University Stations under Chief Galloway, Lieut. Williams, and other officers.

The first of the charred and blackened corpses to be discovered was that of Stenographer J. Wesley Reaves, who died at his typewriter in the office of the chief he served so faithfully and well. He was found as he had fallen, his body bent forward and crushed beneath a mass of wreckage, directly under what had been the office of Assistant General Manager Harry Chandler.

At 3 o'clock yesterday morning came the second of the ghastly finds, a little farther to the north. Though burnt apparently beyond all possible recognition, the location of the body indicates that it may be that of the genial and happy-natured assistant telegraph editor, Crane.

A few minutes later a workman laid his hand upon a black mass lying upon the edge of one of the great steel girders which had fallen twisted as by a giant's hand, when the floor of the composing room went down. The man lifted it, to drop back horrified at the sight of a projecting bit of splintered bone. Reverently they carried the charred and shattered bit to the pavement, where a doctor pronounced it a portion of a human thigh.

CAREFULLY SEARCH CHAOS.

At once a dozen men dropped to their knees about the girder to search with careful hands the chaos of wreckage underneath. A few bones a finger, part of a male torso—and that was all. Whose it was will probably never be known, though its position leads to the supposition that it was one of the eight ill-fated linotype operators, some of whom are known to have been stunned by the explosion and were unable to make any effort to escape.

At 7:20 o'clock a.m. another body was found at a spot corresponding to the position of the copy desk in the composing room. Clinging to the seared flesh were bits of a colored shirt and of a pair of suspenders. The body was nearly whole but the disintegrating effect of the terrible heat had been so great that, when they lifted it, the legs fell away from the trunk. A gun-metal watch was found close by, identified by J. M. Hall, another composing room man, as that of Howard Courdaway, a linotype operator.

This supposed identification was controverted later in the day by the fifth discovery, made shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A human pelvis, with portions of the right femur still attached, was found at about what would be the far end of the linotype room, about twenty feet from the Broadway side. Near it a bit of scalp bearing a wisp of reddish hair was the only clew to the victim's identity. As Courdaway was the only one of the linotype men of auburn hair his friends are certain that it was he.

Close to the wall next the Broadway pavement a small gold watch was found. It is of New York standard make and in the back of its hunting case is pasted the photograph of a young girl. The chain is a double one of large agate beads with gold links, bearing a jade seal. It has been identified as the property of Elmer Frink, operator of linotype No. 17, one of those missing.

TENDER CARE PATHETIC.

To those accustomed to the ordinary methods of clearing wreckage there is something pathetic in the tender care with which the laborers work in that yawning pit on North Broadway. Rough navvies though they are, a woman's touch could not be gentler than theirs as they toil at the great piles of debris where most of Saturday's sacrifices to hate and inhumanity still lie buried. Though the work progresses the more slowly because of it, their picks strike gently into each heap of refuse their shovels dip lightly into the masses of shattered brick and glass. When the bolts of one of the great steel beams have been shorn through and the snorting traction engine drags it slowly to the surface, it is almost timidly that they explore the place that lies beneath. Every few minutes one of them will drop his tools and on his knees lift out by hand the bits of rubbish that may hide human flesh.

There is no shirking in that pit where the men work. There is no shouting or interchange of needless words. Grim and silent, they toil incessantly at their task, pausing only at intervals to snatch a mouthful of water from the aged Ganymede who patrols the pit with pail and tincup. Not even he will leave the place for an instant; his pail is kept replenished by water lowered to him from above.

All day long the wheelbarrows trundle up the runways in an unbroken line, to be dumped in the street and their contents carefully gone over by hand a second time. All day the morgue wagons stand outside the fire lines to receive their pitiful freight, borne reverently through the crowd of thousands who fall back to give it way. All day a dense mass of people crowded against the ropes that bar the four ways to the shattered building, watching and waiting in silence. It is not now a sort of fascinated horror that seems to hold them there—that morbid curiosity so much as sympathy

FEW WITHIN LINES.

But few are permitted within the lines. The laborers, the policemen, a handful of reporters, a few relatives of those reported missing and the city officials in charge of the work, are nearly all. There is a representative of the Coroner's office and one from the citizens committee appointed for investigation always on the scene, though there has been but little, as yet, for them to do.

Everything waits upon the finding of all the bodies known to be buried there. Only so much of the wreckage is being removed as will allow of it, all being carefully examined; the rest is shoveled and piled back upon that part already gone over. The official "investigation of the cause of the explosion"—the cause that has already too bitterly declared itself—will follow when it may. The finding of its victims is the first consideration.

A reporter, who had called more than one victim of the union laborites, murderous hate, "friend and comrade," made his way last night to the side of Mr. Backus, who, in common with other city officials, is keeping almost sleepless vigil over the work of recovering the dead.

"When will the last of those poor, maimed fellows be given to his loved ones?" he was asked.

"The city's work of recovering the dead will, in all probability be completed sometime on Wednesday," he replied. "It is barely possible that it can be finished Tuesday night, but the care with which the labor is being performed almost precludes this.

"Nearly fifty of the men now working in the ruins are employes of the Street Department," he added. "The places of these must be filled by fresh drafts from the laboring forces of the city tomorrow. We shall make every effort to get a big derrick on the scene early tomorrow forenoon, and by removing most of the twisted iron girders from the debris with this, the work will be greatly facilitated."

PATHETIC.

TENSE STRAIN AS TEARS FLOW.

PRESSURE HEAVY ON THE MECHANICAL FORCE.

Saturday Night in the Composing Room of The Times During the Progress of Preparing First Sunday Issue After Dastardly Crime One Long to Be Remembered.

Saturday night in the composing room of the Times, during the progress of preparing the first Sunday issue after the dastardly crime, will always remain a never-to-be-forgotten event in the lives of those who participated in the work.

The survivors of the disaster sacrificed consideration of personal comfort or feeling to get the paper out on schedule time. Scores of men formerly employed in the composing and stereotyping rooms, but engaged in other work since, were on hand early Saturday morning, to do all within their power to assist. They took hold without asking questions.

To the unhitiated a glimpse into the composing room at the linotype school would have given the impression that confusion reigned supreme. Everywhere about the big room electricians were busy installing lights, stereotypers and pressmen were rushing hither and thither getting the great presses, the steam tables and other equipments ready for the night's operations. Linotype men from the Times-Mirror Printing and Binding House stepped into the places made vacant by the loyal men who were murdered, and proofreaders of the regular force were doing their best to make the gaily corrections, which, when work has been done heretofore by Ed Wasson, who lost his life at his post of duty.

Secret service men and men of the regular police force were patrolling the building inside and out, tables and chairs were being placed in position for the use of proofreaders and copyholders, messengers were rushing in with "copy" from the editorial staff and business office — automobiles through the day and night came chugging up to the entrance bringing hot coffee and sandwiches for the men, none of whom had had a wink of sleep since hours before the murder of their comrades at 1 o'clock Saturday morning.

All this, to the outsider would seem confusion, on the contrary, every loyal man of them knew his work, attended strictly to it, and the "copy" was set up, the proofs read, the galleys corrected, the forms made up, the stereotyping accomplished and the paper printed with clock-like precision, and there was no need to avail themselves of outside assistance in getting out the paper.

N. E. Johnson, superintendent of the Times-Mirror Printing and Binding House, was in charge of the composing room in place of S. W. Crabill, whose miraculous escape from death is one of the astonishing things in connection with the fiendish crime. However, Mr. Crabill, with head swathed in bandages and both hands wrapped in surgeon's linen wandered about among the men, giving a word of cheer here a smile of encouragement there, and seeking out each one of the large force of skilled workers, personally inquired whether he had secured a cup of coffee or other refreshments at the temporary "lunch counter," for unless so reminded, the boys were inclined to keep right on under the great pressure of suppressed excitement, giving little thought to the fact that there is a limit to human endurance.

One of the most pathetic things in connection with the composing room's part in getting out the issue, and one which will linger long in the memory of those who were there that night, was the sight of the linotype operators, who, as survivors of the disaster, remained to set up in type the "copy" containing word pictures of the manner in which their almost life-long companions went to their death. It is a peculiarity of The Times, that the men on the paper from the editors down to the messenger boys are as one big family, happy in their own comradeship, and seldom going out of the family circle to seek companions.

Most of the linotype operators who were murdered were men who had been with the paper for many years, men who were expert compositors and life-long friends—brought up in The Times' composing room, one might say. As their newspaper brothers of the "machine" typed off the "copy" relating to their horrible deaths, the tears trickled down their cheeks, a film come over their eyes, the lump would rise in their throats, only to be gulped down, as with the zeal of crusaders, they typed on, mindful only of the fact that they wanted to see The Times out on time, and tears,—strong men's tears—are not conductive to the best results in newspaperdom. You who read the harrowing accounts of this terrible catastrophe and are horror stricken, what think you of the brave boys and their martyrdom of preparing it for your perusal? This is a side of the newspaper world that is seldom if ever given a moment's consideration by the outside world.

It was in one of these tense moment's of excitement in the night's work that Gen. Otis appeared upon the scene. The effect of his presence there during the rush of getting out that first Sunday edition was electrical. Coming into their midst after a month's absence in Mexico, and coming at such a time with philosophical words of comfort and a hearty handshake for one and all, meant more to those boys of his comping room than Gen. Otis will ever know.

All through the night the men worked, running to the lunch counter for a sup of coffee or a sandwich, and back again to their machines, or desks or tables, and when the final forms were being made up, The Times force of boys was on hand to "stuff the papers," and as all the world knows, The Times, with its usual regularity, was delivered to its subscribers on time yesterday.

DYNAMITE IN HOUSE.

Quantity of Explosive Discovered in Vacant Building Near the Gas Works.

Four sticks of dynamite and a box of caps were found late last night in an empty house near the plant of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation on Aliso street. The gas plant is near the brewery of the Maier Brewing Company.

The dynamite is in the hands of the police, having been turned over to them by a man who did not give his name. He explained his reticence by saying that a negro had just rented the house and, on finding the explosive inside, had asked him to take it to the police. The negro sent his name and address on a slip of paper. The name was given as E. D. Marrow.

Unwrapped from some oily paper in the detectives' office the four sticks of dynamite were found to be tied tightly together with a blue string. Each stick was stamped "Giant Powder, Aug. 20, 1908."

The caps, however, did not bear out the old date given on the dynamite as they were bright and untarnished and appeared to have been opened but a few days. A few caps had been taken from the box leaving it about three-quarters full. The label on the cap box was somewhat water soaked, but could be easily read. A small portion of it had been loosened from the box.

The detectives do not connect the discovery of the dynamite with The Times disaster and refused to make a pronounced statement of their views.

It is declared, however, that the dynamite was probably intended for criminal purpose, but for some reason was not used.

A rumor was current about the police headquarters that the dynamite was believed to have been intended to be placed on the premises of the gas company, perhaps from the outspoken views of the president of the company, W. B. Cline, who caused considerable anger to arise among the local unionites by his declaring in the recent convention of gas men that labor unions were at the bottom of the many troubles which have disturbed industrial harmony.

Probably as revenge for Mr. Cline's tirade against unions at the convention, unionites planned to destroy the gas plant and with total disregard for the lives of the men at work tear the expensive plant to pieces or so disable it that it would cost a great amount to put it back into working order.

Why the plot was not carried out, the police are at a loss to say. The finding of the explosive is to be rigidly investigated.

BONES DISINTEGRATED.

Opinion Expressed at Midnight By Deputy Coroner—Llewellyn's Watch Uncovered.

At midnight last night Deputy Coroner Williams declared that in all probability no remains which could be definitely identified will be found in the ruins of the Times Building, the fire being of such intense heat that the bodies were totally burned. Bits of clothing have from time to time been uncovered, but in nearly every case the bits of cloth alone told the searchers that a body had been there before it was reduced to ashes.

In all, six portions of bodies have been found in six different parts of the building, a fragment heare, and a piece of bone there.

At 11:00 o'clock last night a gold watch believed to have belonged to Fred Llewellyn, a linotype operator, was found in the ruins beneath the in excellent condition, but nothing of Llewellyn was found. A fragment of cloth which is believed to have been part of his clothing was near the watch. That was all. A short distance from where the watch was found, a piece of charred bone was uncovered, and the coroner declared that it was probably a piece of a human rib.

TIME PITIFULLY SHORT.

DESCRIBED BY SURVIVOR.

The small margin of time in which to escape which was allowed the employees of The Times after the explosion was graphically described last night by E. T. Gadden, foreman of the stereotyping room for the past sixteen years.

"I was sitting at my desk on the second floor of the building just north of the alley, going over the inventory of the articles used in my work, when with a long roar the explosion occurred. I saw a great volume of flames shoot up through the floor from the alley beneath. The heat was intense. Grant Moore, a machinist, was working in the room next to me, and the first thought I had was of him.

Five of the men in my room and myself rushed for the stairway, but the stairs were so hot we could not stay there, and we were forced to flee in another direction. I thought of the men in the basement, but it was too hot to help them. We groped about the room when some one screamed 'to the roof.' we ran up the stairs and across the roof until we reached a building on Franklin street, where we found a fire escape and climbed to the ground.

"The escape occupied but a few seconds, but we thought faster than we ever did before."

PRACTICAL SYMPATHY.

One instance of practical sympathy which the citizens of Los Angeles are expressing for the victims of the dynamiting of the Times Building is the action of Adolph Ramish, of the firm of Ramish & Marsh. Mr. Ramish yesterday sent 100 teams, without charge, to help in the work of clearing away the debris from the ruins of the building, to facilitate the recovery of the bodies.

EXPRESSIONS.

PRESIDENT IS URGED TO ACT.

THE FEDERAL PROSECUTION OF UNIONITES DEMANDED.

MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY KEEP ON POURING IN.

"EXACT TERRIBLE JUSTICE," SAYS THEODORE BELL.

From all over the country expressions of sympathy for The Times, and of horror at the outrage which resulted in the loss of so many lives, continue to come. It is possible at this time to publish only a few of these. One which shows the temper of leading men of Portland, Or., comes from the Employers' Association of that State and is addressed to Fred L. Baker, president of the Founders' & Employers' Association of Los Angeles. It reads thus:

"We are today forwarding a wire of regrets to the Los Angeles Times, also the following. We trust the commercial bodies in your community will do likewise: To the President, Washington, D. C.: We, the business interests of the West, feel that the present insurgency policy is being misunderstood and is giving the labor agitator an excuse for anarchy. An illustration is shown by the disaster at Los Angeles, this being the second attempt in that city, the first being unsuccessful. The country's welfare demands strong official disapproval of the abuses of modern unionism. Can we not have some relief through Federal prosecution?'"

FROM PATRICK CALHOUN.

Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railways of San Francisco, who is in New York, wired in this way:

"I have just read with horror an account of the terrible outrage committed in blowing up your building. The energy, capacity and high character shown by The Times in defense of industrial freedom command the respect of patriotic Americans, and the attack upon you on account of your fearless advocacy of your principles will arouse tremendous indignation. The reckless denunciation of your powerful paper by unscrupulous demagogues has unquestionably contributed to this outrage. I hope the perpetrators will be found and punished. My whole nature turns in abhorrence from such dastardly scoundrels with deep sympathy to you."

THOMAS E. MURPHY WIRES.

Hon. Thomas E. Murphy, Lieutenant-Governor of Pennsylvania, and a son of the late Francis Murphy, the famous temperance advocate, wires from Philadelphia to Gen. H. G. Otis as subjoined.

"With a sense of horror that such demoniacal destruction is even conceivable in this fair land of free opportunity, and sympathising deeply with the sorely distressed dependents on those so ruthlessly slaughtered, we are thankful that you and others of the Los Angeles Times have been spared to continue without the interruption of a single issue its fearless purpose of advocating for all men liberty and equality of opportunity under the law."

COL BLETHEN OF SEATTLE.

Delivered at the same time as the above came this wire; addressed to Harry Chandler, from Col. Alden J. Blethen, editor and chief proprietor of the Seattle Times:

"I am shocked and horrified at the awful calamity which has destroyed your principal property. I extend my sincere sympathy to Gen. Otis and yourself. I wish I could think that organized labor had nothing to do with this awful affair, but the signs point the other way. Regretting the loss of life, as I had that experience once myself, I congratulate you on your escape from what was intended as your end ing."

STATEMENT BY THEODORE BELL

Theodore A. Bell last evening made the following statement:

"I was in the interior of San Bernardino county when I heard the report of the terrible outrages committed in Los Angeles. The details betokened fiendishness so revolting that at first I could not give them credence as corroborative evidence has accumulated, however, the hope that natural causes may have occasioned the loss of life and property, has gone. The sinister mind of man planned the outrages; his cruel hand executed them.

"Civilization rests above all else on the belief that life is sacred and property is secure. Any attack on this fundamental is sheer anarchy, and in its defense all men must stand as one. Every effort should be made to bring the dastards responsible for this awful calamity to a speedy and complete accounting. And to this end there should be no consideration of time, or effort or of money.

"In the face of so much suffering words are barren to express what each of us feel. Let us, in action show the depth to which we are stirred. The fair name of Los Angeles and California has been stained Let us stand as one people in exacting a terrible justice."

EDITORS IN UNITY.

Charles E. Jones, president of the Southern California Editorial Association, personally brought in the following letter addressed to Gen. Otis:

"The terrible loss which The Times has sustained is by none more deeply regretted than by the members of the Southern California Editorial Association. We hope the investigation now in progress will disclose the origin of the catastrophe in accident instead of premeditation. If, however, some human fiend has wrought this destruction of life and property no punishment can adequately expiate his abominable offense. Violence may temporarily hinder the power of the press but can never throttle it."

VOICE HORROR.

his sermon and prayer last night referred to the destruction of The Times building and the terrible tragedy in the loss of life. He expressed profound sympathy for the owners of the paper, and specially for the grief-stricken families of those who had lost their lives. He also prayed that God might give special keenness to those who had the responsibility of discovering the miscreants and bringing them to justice. Among other things, he said:

"Our city today is under the shadow of a terrible tragedy. The destruction of The Times building, entailing a terrible loss of life, is a calamity that should arouse every law-abiding, liberty-loving citizen. It makes no difference how much we may disagree with one another in our commercial, political or religious views, there should be no place among civilized, not to say Christian people, for jealousy, hatred, envy, spite and murder.

"If it is proven that union labor had anything to do with the awful destruction of property and life last Friday night, then I shall be profoundly sorry for the cause of organized labor. It will have received a blow from which it can never recover in this city. One thing is absolutely certain, the people of Los Angeles, and ultimately the people of this country, will not stand for the lawless, anarchistic methods of Russia and some European countries. The citizens of Los Angeles do not propose that this city shall be run on the same basis that San Francisco is managed today. That city, in its moral corruption and lawless methods, has been and is a disgrace to the Pacific Coast and the whole country.

"It makes no difference how much some people may have disagreed with The Times in its views on various questions, all fair-minded people will unite in the most emphatic and positive manner in condemning this villainous action against The Times as the act of a conscienceless villain, who, if discovered, deserves no mercy at the hands of either God or man. Everything known to human ingenuity should be done to discover the authors of the foul deed, and punishment should be meted out to them so swiftly and surely that it will be a warning to all other villains against the reception of such an act."

ONLY EARNING THEIR BREAD.

Dr. Ervin S. Chapman, who was filling the pulpit of Dr. Charles Edward Locke in the First Methodist Church, dwelt briefly upon some of the incidents in connection with the "dastardly outrage." He pictured the horror of such a crime, and lauded the humanitarian instinct that caused the head of the establishment, in the first instant of the horror, to think only of the "poor boys down there."

"These men who lost their lives," said Dr. Chapman, "did not rush into danger. They were sitting there earning their daily bread. Without any fault of their own, they were overtaken, and became victims of this awful outrage."

Dr. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, made extended reference to the outrage in his prayer, and in his sermon, as "a great trial to us as a community."

CONGREGATIONS ACT.

At Christ Episcopal Church, which was filled with worshipers, resolutions, addressed to "The Owners, Managers and Employees of the Los Angeles Times," were adopted by a rising vote, as follows:

"Resolved, that we, the parish of Christ Church, assembled in congregation, on this second day of October, 1910, by the rector, vestry and parishioners, desire to express to the owners, managers and employees of the Los Angeles Times, our heartfelt sympathy and fraternal affection, in this their hour of trial and bereavement, and to assure them that as individuals, and as a parish, we stand for law, order and righteousness, and against anarchy, arson and murder.

"Resolved, that this parish, following its Master, the Carpenter of Galilee, desires to extend a helping hand, in this time of sorrow, suffering and bereavement, and to express to The Times, and through The Times, to the able and patriotic press of our city, its earnest desire at all times, to assist and co-operate in every movement for freedom, enlightenment and Christian organization."

The committee signing the resolutions was composed of Rev. Baker P. Lee, rector of Christ Church; George V. Parsons, warden; C. A. Rockwell, treasurer, and Ben Williams, vestryman.

While the large congregation yet remained standing, the rector asked them to bow their heads, and then offered prayer for those whose lives had been assailed; those in trouble and sorrow, and following the example of the Savior on the cross, asked God, in the name of Jesus, and by the power of the Holy Spirit, to enlighten the understanding, clarify the vision, and change the hearts of the perpetrators of this awful deed."

DENOUNCE CRIME.

In Trinity M. E. Church, South, after Dr. R. P. Howell, the pastor, had made reference to the foul crime, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, on the morning of October 1st, 1910, there occurred a terrible explosion in the building of the Los Angeles Times, causing the death of a number of the employees of said newspaper, and inflicting serious personal injuries upon others, as well as a great financial loss to the owner of said property; and

"Whereas, all right-thinking people deplore this great catastrophe and heartily sympathize with the bereaved, as well as those who suffered said financial loss; and

"Whereas, it has been suggested that the explosion was caused by one or more evil-minded persons;

"Therefore, be it resolved, by the congregation of Trinity M. E. Church, South, that we extend to the bereaved relatives and friends of the dead, and the sorrowing friends and relatives of the injured, our profound sympathy, and pray that the blessings of God may assuage their grief in this dark hour.

"Resolved, that we denounce this criminal deed, if done by design, as unspeakably evil and dastardly, and the cause of justice demands that those responsible for such a crime if such, should be discovered at any expense of time and money, and made to pay the penalty of so grave a crime against life and property."

Lillian Russell has been lecturing before the National Dress Makers' Association in Chicago, on the subject: "What the Actress Owes Her Dressmaker." Maybe she is going to promise to pay it some day.

SPECIAL SESSION.

LEGISLATORS GATHERING.

DOUBT EXPRESSED AS TO POWER TO AMEND.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 2.—Senators and assemblymen arrived today for the special session of the legislature called for tomorrow, but doubt was expressed tonight by Sergeant-at-Arms Stafford, of the house, and by others, whether there would be a quorum when the gavels fell in the two chambers at noon. In that case it will be necessary to issue orders for the arrest of the present members.

Lieut-Governor Porter is here. Speaker Stanton will arrive tomorrow morning with the bulk of the Los Angeles delegation. There was a sprinkling of senators and assemblymen in the corridors of the hotels tonight, but the number was few.

Among the senators present the opinion has been advanced that the special session has no power to amend the constitutional amendment submitted at the regular session. This is held to be the law by at least three senators, Price, Boynton and Caminetti. They are emphatic in their statement to this effect.

It was their conviction that the only way out of the difficulty is to submit another constitutional amendment and let the two go to the people with the understanding that the original one ought to be defeated. This would create confusion, of course, but they believe it the only thing to be done.

On the other hand, Senator Curtin, father of the amendment, was just as emphatic in the opinion that the special session had power to rescind the resolution by which the other amendment was submitted and submit another.

"The Legislature has power to do that which is expressed in the call," he said.

There is some gossip among members on the ground over the contest for the speakership of the house. Already four candidates have appeared. They are Hewitt, of Rutherford, of Nevada; C. C. Young, of Berkeley, and Milton Schmitz, of San Francisco. Of these the three named are Lincoln-Roosevelt leaguers.

MIDDLE WEST TEMPERATURE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) Today was a repeater, being a perfect "Indian summer" day, and prospects good for several more to follow. The maximum temperature was 70 and the minimum 57 degrees. West temperatures at 7 p.m.: Alpena, 48; Bismarck, 58; Calgary, 54; Cheyenne, 42; Cincinnati, 70; Cleveland, 54; Davenport, 74; Denver, 56; Des Moines, 58; Detroit, 64; Devil's Lake, 48; Dodge, 74; Dubuque, 74; Duluth, 50; Escanaba, 50; Grand Rapids, 68; Green Bay, 54; Helena, 48; Indianapolis, 70; Kansas City, 76; Marquette, 62; Minneapolis, 62; Milwaukee, 60; Omaha, 68; St. Louis, 78; St. Paul, 72; Sault Ste. Marie, 44; Springfield, Ill., 74; Springfield, Mo., 74; Wichita, 52.

The Yale professors have had their salaries increased, but at that they are not within speaking distance of the money paid the football coaches.

A meat dealer in Los Angeles is in trouble over the question of short weights. We have always contended that a pound of porterhouse steak ought to weigh sixteen ounces.

It is now proposed by the Democrats to resubmit the prohibition amendment. It is possible that a majority of the people there, as shown by the recent election returns, are Democrats or insurgents, but not thirsty.

CORDIAL.

GOOD WILL OF [illegible] IS EXPRESSED

"Three Cheers for California and the [illegible] Proposed at Banquet Tendered by [illegible] Associations at Venice in Celebration of [illegible] Respects to Yellow Journals and Pet[illegible]

"Three cheers for California and the United States," was the final toast proposed at the banquet tendered officers and committeemen of the Japanese associations in the Ship Cafe at Venice yesterday at the happy celebration of "rice day." In Japan September 30 of each year is the nation's Thanksgiving Day. On that day the Emperor partakes of the first rice of the new crop. Afterwards the people celebrate the harvest with a great feast. In all the world, so far as known here, Venice is the only city outside of Japan where this feast is observed. Only forty Japanese now make their home in Venice, yet they take it upon themselves to tender a royal reception to the thirty-five hundred Japanese residing in Los Angeles. For five years they have given a magnificent entertainment on this occasion.

In every feature of yesterday's programme the good will of Japan for America was emphasized. At the banquet at noon "America" was the first and last toast. It was drunk in rich American champagne, and the entire menu, including the dill pickles and the music, were wholesomely and completely American. Even the musicians were tipped in the most extravagant American fashion. The banquet itself was quite simple, reflecting perfect taste. Everything about the celebration was rich and satisfactory without being overdone.

The after-dinner speeches were made before dinner, and they were as charming in their brevity as they were sincere and delightful in sentiment. M. Yamasaki, master of ceremonies and toastmaster, did not introduce the speakers. Instead each rose promptly as if at his own initiative, spoke briefly and to the point and resumed his seat amid a round of hearty applause. There was in this arrangement an appreciation of time amounting to a precious economy.

First to arise was T. Kuranaga, once a merchant in Pasadena, later the editor of a Japanese newspaper in San Francisco and now engaged in the newspaper and mercantile business in Seattle. When the earthquake destroyed his newspaper in San Francisco, Mr. Kuranaga, with splendid enterprise, issued an edition of his newspaper, a mimeograph. For several days during that distressing stage of devastation he served his subscribers in that way. In pleading for a better appreciation, on the part of Americans, of the true spirit of Japan he said:

"Do not fight with us; trade with us. We need everything in America. Your your automobiles to your Boston beans. You should be proud of us, because you have made us. America is the greatest nation in the world. By your example and your commerce you have made Japan what it is today. If you have failed to understand us, it is only because we cannot express ourselves in your language. We are all human, and as some of the old Greek we should meet in appreciation."

VICTORY TEACHES LESSON.

M. Nakamura spoke with beautiful clarity touching the same vital subject. "There is," said, "a universal law of human intercourse which, in the end, will right all slights and criticisms by bringing us to a clear understanding of each other and American should appreciate that the Japanese hold the United States in a sentimental and a fundamental regard. We look to you for the high example in the matter of national problems of government as well as in the great matter of economics. Instead of intoxicating us, the victory of our arms over Russia has only taught us a deeper prayer for peace. We have a population of forty million people. Our national debt is very great. To conserve our financial resources, rather than to indulge in fresh extravagances, is the desire of our people and of our government. We would submit to anything in honor rather than face a new war. We cherish America in a friendship that is deep and true, and, it is our hope that this friendship will ever increase."

Previous to the banquet the same spirit was expressed both by Mr. Yamasaki in his address of welcome, and by D. Nieno, secretary of the Japanese Association of Los Angeles, in his response. Mr. Yamasaki announced the programme as representative of one of Japan's greatest festivals, stating that yesterday's demonstration was perhaps the greatest ever to have been held by Japanese in a foreign country. He said that it gave peculiar pleasure that the event should by witnessed by thousands of Americans.

In his happy response to this cordial welcome Mr. Nieno said:

"Ladies and gentlemen: It is a great honor for me to make a short address here this afternoon. During the last few years there has been much talk of war between Japan and America. Will there be a war between the two nations? Of course no one can tell what a change the future aspect of the diplomacy of the two countries would assume, as it greatly depends upon how each nation treats the other. But at present I can see no trouble or dispute that cannot be settled otherwise than by a war. The very latest diplomacy of the two nations toward each other, are [illegible] not [illegible] enmity or suspicion. When Japan made public the annexation of Corea to Japan, America raised no objection and the tone of the American press was quite indifferent as if it thought the annexation was a logical consequence. On the other hand, when the question of Panama Canal fortification was raised by the English papers, Japan expressed her willingness to support the United States in her claim. These two are the most recent and conspicuous occasions in which the friendly relation now existing between the two nations has been expressed.

"Then," you may ask, "why is there so much anti-Japanese agitation on this side of the Pacific?" I say, it is simply because each does not understand the other rightly and thoroughly. This lack of rational and thorough understanding has given and is giving golden chances to many petty politicians and yellow journals to give false impression to the innocent public and to lead them into a pitfall.

CORDIAL.

GOOD WILL OF NATIONS IS EXPRESSED AT FEAST.

"Three Cheers for California and the United States" Is Final Toast Proposed at Banquet Tendered by Representatives of Japanese Associations at Venice in Celebration of "Rice Day"—Speaker Pays Respects to Yellow Journals and Petty Politicians.

"Three cheers for California and the United States," was the final toast proposed at the banquet tendered officers and committeemen of the Japanese associations in the Ship Cafe at Venice yesterday at the happy celebration of "rice day." In Japan September 20 of each year is the nation's Thanksgiving Day. On that day the Emperor partakes of the first rice of the new crop. Afterwards the people celebrate the harvest with a great feast. In all the world, so far as known here, Venice is the only city outside of Japan where this feast is observed. Only forty Japanese now make their home in Venice, yet they take it upon themselves to tender a royal reception to the thirty-five hundred Japanese residing in Los Angeles. For five years they have given a magnificent entertainment on this occasion.

In every feature of yesterday's programme the good will of Japan for America was emphasized. At the banquet at noon "America" was the first and last toast. It was drunk in rich American champagne, and the entire menu, including the dill pickles and the music, were wholesomely and completely American. Even the musicians were tipped in the most extravagant American fashion. The banquet itself was quite simple, reflecting perfect taste. Everything about the celebration was rich and satisfactory without being overdone.

The after-dinner speeches were made before dinner, and they were as charming in their brevity as they were sincere and delightful in sentiment. M. Tamasaki, master of ceremonies and toastmaster, did not introduce the speakers. Instead each rose promptly as if at his own initiative, spoke briefly and to the point and resumed his seat amid a round of hearty applause. There was in this arrangement an appreciation of time amounting to a precious economy.

First to arise was T. Kuranaga, once a merchant in Pasadena, later the editor of a Japanese newspaper in San Francisco and now engaged in the newspaper and mercantile business in Seattle. When the earthquake destroyed his newspaper in San Francisco, Mr. Kuranaga, with splendid enterprise, printed an edition of his newspaper by mimeograph. For several days during that distressing siege of devastation he served his subscribers in that way. In pleading for a better appreciation, on the part of Americans, of the true spirit of Japan he said:

"Do not fight with us; trade with us. We need everything in America. Buy your automobiles of your Boston house. You should be proud of us, because you have made us. America is the greatest nation in the world. By your example and your commerce you have made Japan what it is today. If you have failed to understand us, it is only because we cannot express ourselves in your language. We are all human, and as sons of the one God we should meet in appreciation."

VICTORY TEACHES LESSON.

K. Nakamura, spoke with beautiful delicacy touching the same vital subject. "There is," said, "a universal law of human intercourse which, if followed, will right all slights and criticisms by bringing us to a clear understanding of each other and American should appreciate that the Japanese hold the United States in a sentimental and a fundamental regard. We look to you for the highest example in the matter of national problems of government as well as in the great matter of economics. Instead of intoxicating us, the victory of our arms over Russia has only taught us a deeper prayer for peace. We have a population of forty million people. Our national debt is very great. To conserve our material resources, rather than to indulge in fresh extravagances, is the desire of our people and of our government. We would submit to anything rather than face a new war. We cherish America in a friendship that is deep and true, and, it is our hope that this friendship will ever continue."

Previous to the banquet the same spirit was expressed both by Mr. Tamasaki in his address of welcome and by D. Nieno, secretary of the Japanese Association of Los Angeles, in response. Mr. Tamasaki announced the programme as representative of one of Japan's greatest festivities, stating that yesterday's demonstration was perhaps the greatest ever to have been held by Japanese in a foreign country. He said that it gave him peculiar pleasure that the event should be witnessed by thousands of Americans.

In his happy response to this cordial greeting Mr. Nieno said:

"Ladies and gentlemen: It is a great honor for me to make a short address here this afternoon. During the last few years there has been much talk of war between Japan and America. Will there be a war between the two nations? Of course no one can foretell a change the future aspect of the diplomacy of the two countries may assume, as it greatly depends upon how each nation treats the other. At present I can see no trouble or difficulty than cannot be settled otherwise than by a war. The very latest policy of the two nations toward each other, are free from all enmity or suspicion. When Japan made public the annexation of Corea, America raised no objection and the tone of the American press was quite indifferent as if it thought the annexation was a logical consequence. On the other hand, when the opening of Panama Canal fortifications were criticised by the English papers, Japan expressed her willingness to support the United States in her claim. These two are the most recent and conspicuous occasions in which the friendly relation now existing between the two nations has been expressed.

"Why," you may ask, 'why is there such anti-Japanese agitation on the coast of the Pacific?' I say, it is simply because each does not understand the other rightly and thoroughly. This lack of rational and thorough understanding has given and is giving golden chances to many petty politicians and yellow journals to give false impression to the innocent public and to lead them into a pitfall. At present, all civilized nations are led by the newspapers which form national sentiment on one hand and reflect it on the other. This is most true in America, but if you remember what Mr. Roosevelt, in the Outlook some time ago, told the Americans, warning them about yellow journalism, you will agree with me that there are too many yellow journals in this country.

"America is a country where almost unlimited individualism is enjoyed by the people and even simple-minded, uneducated persons can vote and their votes count just as those cast by wealthy and cultivated persons. It is, therefore, necessary for ambitious but not-public-spirited petty politicians to say or act something which pleases simple-minded but honest people to get their votes. In my regard, yellow journals and self-seeking petty politicians are elements that Americans should get rid of and the sooner this is done, the better for America. I should say that what I said about yellow papers and petty politicians should also be said of Japan.

"The cordial and friendly relations of Japan and America were often reported by many yellow American papers to be in an acute stage, while there was nothing so serious in its nature. This jingoistic and warlike spirit was aroused by many small and blind politicians against Japan.

To maintain and develop the traditional friendship between Japan and America, there are many things which should be done by both nations, but there is nothing more urgent than opening the eyes of the Americans to the common life, religion and sentiment of the Japanese. Meanwhile, the Japanese must learn more and more about American life, American religion, American industry and American sentiment. If the two nations know better and understand more thoroughly each other's inner and outer life, we need not worry if there be a million more yellow papers and blind dishonest politicians.

Japan day in Venice is considered as a mere business proposition, and I think it is so, but no matter what kind of enterprise it may be, if it bring the two nations into closer contact and give them a more correct and actual knowledge of one another, it is a very happy and useful thing to have, saying nothing about the mere business gain to Venice. In Japan day, you will see examples of some phases of Japanese national life and it may help you in framing your idea of what Japan and the Japanese really are.

"True friendship must be based upon clear and thoroughgoing knowledge of each other. Japan day gives both the Americans and the Japanese a good and pleasant opportunity to come into closer contact and better understanding, thus developing and increasing cordial relation between the two great nations on the both sides of the Pacific. For these reasons, I hope today will prove a great success and I have no doubt it will be."

Arrangements for yesterday's festivities were admirably managed by Mr. Suge of Venice. In behalf of the American citizens F. K. McCarver took charge of the amusements which were entirely Japanese in character. Assisting in every possible way was J. Tokoi, a merchant of Venice, who leaves today on a visit to Japan. J. S. Okashi, a Japanese interpreter of Los Angeles and M. T. Ugeda, of the Tmato stores. The program consisted of a sensational gamped fight between ten bamboo fencers, an exceedingly clever jiu jitsu exhibition, some superb wrestling, a Japanese theatrical performance, dancing, and day and night fireworks.

ACTION.

PLAN TO STOP BIG AUTO RACE.

FATALITIES STIR LONG ISLAND AUTHORITIES.

PERMIT MAY BE CANCELLED; OLDFIELD WITHDRAWS.

COURSE IS IMPROPERLY POLICED DRIVERS AVER.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The board of supervisors of Nassau county, Long Island, will hold a special meeting tomorrow to consider the advisability of canceling the permit for the Grand Prize automobile race, scheduled to be held over the Vanderbilt cup course, October 15.

Notwithstanding yesterday's list of four dead and more than twenty injured, incident to the Vanderbilt race, A. R. Partington, general manager of the Long Island Motor Parkway, is authority for the statement that nothing but official interference shall stop the Grand Prize.

OLDFIELD WITHDRAWS.

Several drivers booked to participate in the event have demanded more adequate policing of the course, and tonight William Pickens, manager for Barney Oldfield, gave out the following message, which he says Oldfield sent from Chicago:

"Withdraw my entry from Grand Prize race unless course will be guarded completely by troops. I am unwilling to risk my neck and car."

Oldfield follows with a severe arraignment of the management of the Vanderbilt, whom he says, "spent nothing to safeguard drivers and spectators."

The foregoing from Oldfield is somewhat cryptic, however, in that it was said in New York tonight that he had not been entered for the Grand Prize. It was at first understood he would drive a Benz car, but the Benz management is said to have decided on Hemery, Hein and Hearne as their drivers.

C. C. Painter, a member of the Nassau Board of Supervisors, will offer a motion to cancel he permit at a board meeting tomorrow. Any move to cancel the race will be bitterly fought.

No more deaths of those injured had occurred up to tonight, but the condition of four persons is critical.

It is a matter of no great surprise that the Spanish throne is tottering. There are so many little tots already in the family of King Alfonso, with a disposition on the part of the royal pair to allow nature to take its regular course.

BANKERS ROLL IN ALL NIGHT.

HOTELS CROWDED, MANY MORE CONTINUE TO ARRIVE.

RECEPTION ARRANGEMENTS WORK PERFECTLY.

VISITORS CALL JOURNEY MOST DELIGHTFUL ONE.

"Bankers' Specials" rolled into town so fast between 5 and 12 o'clock last night that it was almost impossible to keep track of the arrivals. The Los Angeles bankers, however, had an organization that would be a credit to the army in time of siege, and no banker crept over the city walls without being discovered and welcomed.

The downtown hotels filled up to overflowing and the outlying hotels took care of the rest. There were automobiles at all of the stations in sufficient number to accommodate every guest, and they hummed back and forth all evening.

The delegates had only to turn over their hand bags to the first man wearing a reception committee badge, and keep in his wake in order to arrive at their respective destinations, without trouble or worry.

The trains were late, of course—the term, "special train," has come to mean one that is from six to twenty-four hours behind its schedule, but the bankers arrived happy and contented. They had enjoyed the hospitality of San Bernardino and Riverside counties along the way, and had been provided for at every turn.

The railroad stations were all busy, bustling scenes. Friends and relatives of the incoming passengers added to the ranks of reception committee members. The "Croesus" special from Chicago was one of the first big trains to pull in at the Salt Lake station.

It was so long that it reached nearly from the Fourth-street station to the main depot. There was a wild scramble to watch every platform of the coaches. Bank presidents and cashiers acted as ushers and porters, seizing heavy grips and bearing them away to the automobiles.

BUSY SCENE AT STATIONS.

The machines coughed and sputtered and dashed off with their loads at thirty-second intervals, and then came hurrying back for more. Close behind the Chicago train was the Kansas City special. This had been bulletined as the St. Louis special, and those who had been waiting all the afternoon for it, were obliged to go away and return again at midnight.

Shortly before 7 o'clock the New York specials began to roll in over the Santa Fe. The first was the "White" special, and following it were the "Blue" and "Green" sections. The Indiana and Oklahoma delegations came in early in the evening. The Milwaukee-Cincinnati special was in over the Salt Lake at 11 o'clock.

The registration bureau at the Alexandria was in full operation until midnight with a complete system for handling the delegates. There was a large force of stenographers to take care of the information, and the process of registration was greatly facilitated by providing for rapid dictation of all necessary facts. It was possible at any hour to find out who had arrived and registered, and every assistance was given to friends and relatives of the arrivals.

Stoddard Jess, chairman of the reception committee, was on duty all day at the bankers' headquarters across from the Alexandria, on Fifth street. He was in constant communication with the reception committee at the various stations and with the automobile headquarters. The reception committee constituted a flying squadron always ready to concentrate on the latest point of attack.

NEW YORKERS ENTHUSIASTIC.

Among the most enthusiastic arrivals last night were the members of the New York delegation. Their journey across the continent was without an unfavorable incident, and the three sections came in on schedule time.

They had visited the Grand Canyon and other points of interest en route.

Leaving New York City over the New York Central, on a train which represented a million dollars in its equipment, they had every comfort of a hotel on wheels in their transcontinental trip. When at San Bernardino a basket of fruit and a bunch of flowers was left in the compartment, they found the pleasure of the journey more than complete.

The Chicago Bankers' Special, which became known as the "Croesus" train because of the wealth represented, was one of the most elaborately managed. A beautiful souvenir book contained the passenger list and location in compartments, so that social calls were as easily managed as they are through the hotel register. This party devoted a day at Salt Lake City, and thus came in twenty-four hours late.

There are still more scheduled to arrive, the Cleveland special coming down from Santa Barbara this morning, due at 7.30 o'clock; a Salt Lake train at 9 a. m., bringing western delegates, and a number of other regular trains carrying delegates who could not secure reservations on the specials.

At 9 o'clock last night, 650 members of the American Bankers' Association had registered at the headquarters in the Alexandria. This was but a small percentage of the crowds that had already arrived. Most of the Bankers were accompanied by wives and parties of friends who are not officially registered.

RICHMOND IN THE FIELD.

RICHMOND IN THE FIELD.

Before the delegates had disembarked, the contest for next year's session of the convention had begun. John M. Miller, Jr., vice-president of the First National Bank of Richmond, began his campaign in the lobby of the Alexandria last night. He joined the reception committee with a "Welcome, and vote for Richmond" for every arrival.

Richmond invited the association to meet there this year, but yielded to the claims of Los Angeles. It is now in the field for the convention of 1911. Other cities that will be heard from are San Antonio, New Orleans and Atlantic City.

FALLS UNDER CAR.

While boarding a Los Angeles Pacific car at Pier avenue, Santa Monica, shortly before midnight, R. I. Daniels, aged 22 years, of No. 322 California street, San Francisco, fell and the wheels passed over his legs, crushing them so that they had to be amputated.

What has become of that standby of old-fashioned meteorology, the equinoctial storm. In these days when the ground hog finds few to do him reverence, it is a breach of professional courtesy for the equinoctial tempest to fail to come to time. Pretty soon all the old oracles of weather wisdom will be as dead and disregarded as the deities of Valhalla and Olympus.

TO THE TIMES' ADVERTISERS.

This issue of The Times contains many of the liner and display advertisements that were unavoidably omitted from Sunday's edition. A large number of these advertisements were prepared and ordered for insertion on Sunday only, and in publishing them today The Times is actuated not by the monetary rewards involved, but by a desire to give its patrons the benefit of the greatly increased circulation of The Times due to the widespread interest in the recent catastrophe. All of The Times' regular subscribers, agents and newsboys are being supplied, and the paper circulated with the same thoroughness and completeness that formerly obtained, and, in addition, the counter sales and transient circulation of the paper has very largely increased.

In view of these facts, we feel that we are rendering our patrons a distinct and valuable service by publishing in this issue advertisements omitted Sunday.

WOUNDS THREE IN SALOON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Following a daring hold-up of the saloon of Giovanni Giohotto, during which he fired several shots into a crowd of thirteen customers, slightly wounding three men, George Smith, a young teamster, was chased through the streets early this morning by policemen in an automobile, and arrested. He is held on a charge of assault with intent to rob, and three charges of assault with intent to kill.

Thomas Beck Is Dead.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 2.—Thomas Beck, Secretary of State from 1875 to 1880, State Senator from Monterey and Santa Clara counties in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Legislatures, died today at Represa, the town surrounding the Folsom State prison. Beck, who was the father-in-law of Warden W. A. Reilly of Folsom prison, years ago was a prominent architect, and at the time of his death was superintendent of construction of the new hospital for the criminal insane at Folsom. Mr. Beck crossed the plains in 1852. He was 81 years old.

CONVICTED.

PIN CRIMES TO UNIONITES.

LINKS IN CHAIN FASTEN GUILT ON THEM.

SERIES OF OUTRAGES ADDS TO THE EVIDENCE.

DYNAMITE FIGURES LARGELY IN DAMNING LIST.

Men have paid the death penalty on circumstantial evidence more loosely connected than the chain which the labor unionites themselves have fashioned to fasten on them the guilt of having committed one of the worst atrocities in the history of the world.

The destruction of the Times Building and the deliberate murder of more than a score of men, is the culmination of a series of attempts to wreck property and take toll in human lives with fire and explosives.

Just one month ago the police took dynamite away from a man who lurked in front of the Hotel Alexandria, a great institution which is hated by labor unions because it will tolerate only those workmen who are industrially free.

At the end of intervals of a week, the scoundrels successively attempted to destroy those whose courage to oppose them they could not daunt. They did not hesitate to plot to ruin a building which is being constructed for the public benefit.

The labor unions have continually denied their implication in the murderous schemes, but the mute evidence fastens the guilt upon them. By no coincidence could the property of the employers of non-union men be marked by the destroyers in every instance. Each crime was the outgrowth of cool, deliberate planning. The motive is too obvious to need being searched for.

The police observed a man, acting as though he was under the influence of liquor, depositing a package in front of the Hotel Alexandria on September 1. It was opened and found to contain dynamite. He gave a vague excuse for having the explosive in his possession.

His story was not more logical than the theory that he had carried it to the building for a purpose and attempted to rid himself of it when he found that he had arrived at an inopportune time.

The labor unions disclaimed him and the destructive power he carried, but they cannot refute the fact that they hated the hotel proprietors because they employed men whose hands were free in constructing the new annex.

The day previous the site of the new addition had been the scene of a riot incited by unionite strikers. The violence shown was similar to that which has characterized the strike ever since the brewery workers walked out.

In the bright light of midday murderous assaults have been committed. In the darkness of the night, the bullets have sung threateningly near those who opposed the bullying tactics of the unionites. Even the sworn officers of the law have been attacked by the ruffians, who were ambushed in the darkness of night.

PLOT THWARTED.

Ten days later a scheme to level the new Hall of Records which is being constructed, was thwarted because a man with a conscience had been let into the scheme by the unionite plotters.

"Take as many men as you can get and go to the Hall of Records and prevent it from being blown up," was the message received late at night by Lieutenant Sebastian.

"Never mind my name. I'm a union man, but I can't stand for a thing like that," he said, in response to a

The officer was undecided as to whether or not it was a hoax conceived for the purpose of disturbing the Police Department, but he realized that the situation had become too acute to overlook a tip on a matter of such a serious nature. With a squad of officers he hastened to the partly constructed building.

Labor union agitators and strikers were found in the vicinity. They attempted to get away, but were arrested. When daylight came, it disclosed two sticks of dynamite lying a short distance apart, having the appearance of having been hastily discarded.

This was another building where the unionites had been discharged on account of their excessive demands and their places filled with free workmen.

On September 18, an effort was made to destroy the courtroom of Justice Summerfield. A fire was built in a pile of papers which had been heaped against the dry woodwork underneath the structure.

A bartender in the rear of a saloon, which backs up to the place, saw the incendiary run away. The next instant the flames cast a flare on an adjoining building. He summoned assistance and put out the fire.

MARKED FOR DESTRUCTION.

This was another instance where a person upon whom vengeance had been vowed, occupied the building which was marked for destruction.

One of the occupants of the place was Constable Cohn. He furnished all of the deputies who suppressed violence when the brewery strike was called and has been designated as an object for the hatred of the union laboritties.

The next act of violence was the catastrophe which has startled the world because of the wanton destruction of human lives.

The detonations of the explosives at the Times Building had barely died away when the labor unions began to deny their connection with the murderous act. "Gas explosion," they cried. Their organs re-echoed their words. But the sober-thinking public could not be so easily deceived. Each explanation offered to free the fiends from responsibility only damned them the more.

But the acts of these devils in the forms of men silenced even their most ardent supporters. There could be no further doubt where the finger of guilt should point when the tools of anarchists were found at the home of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, and at the residence of F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

The labor unions are convicted in the court of the people. Their own evidence can be equitably and justly viewed and digested with only one result. The public does not need to be told who is responsible for acts which would disgrace Russia for their lawlessness.

SELECT NEW POLICE CHIEF.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—When the police commissioners meet tomorrow to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Chief of Police John R. Martin, John F. Seymour, chief of the Wells-Fargo Company's detective bureau, and formerly captain of detectives in the city force, will be named. Capt. Seymour today confirmed the rumors that he had been chosen at a conference of the city officials.

FOUR HURT IN AUTO UPSET.

CENTERVILLE (Cal.) Oct. 2.—Miss Anna Kelly, a nurse from the Necropolis Sanatorium in Oakland, was seriously injured and four other persons slightly hurt today when an automobile in which they were riding near here turned over. Dr. J. Shannon, owner of the machine; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hill of Eureka and Miss Frances Patton of Oakland, were the other members of the party.

SUSPECT IS HELD.

SEATTLE, Oct. 2.—Patrick Powers, who, with his brother, Mike, is wanted, in connection with the robbery of the First National Bank of Highland, Cal., last February, was arrested here today, and is being held awaiting the arrival of an officer from California, to complete the identification. Powers declines to discuss the charge, and says he knows nothing of the whereabouts of his brother.

TO SETTLE WITH MEXICO.

EL PASO (Tex.) Oct. 2.—Judge Walter B. Grat, chief counsel for the government in the Chamisal zone dispute, between the United States and Mexico, arrived here today to arrange for the sittings of the arbitration board. The dispute involves about 600 acres of land including one-fifth of the area of the city of El Paso. The property is valued at $5,000,000, and about 5000 persons are affected.

THREE KILLE DIN RIOT.

AUGUSTA (Ga.) Oct. 2.—In a riot on the Hagenback & Wallace circus train en route from Columbia to Augusta this morning, three men are known to have been killed, and it is believed a fourth is dead. Thirty-three members of the circus crew were arrested here.

Paula Williamson of Athens, a billing clerk of the Southern Railway at Columbus, was shot to death and his body mutilated, a negro canvasman and a scullion of the circus are dead.

Why should mere men worry about the hobble skirt? They are not compelled to wear them.

Pen Points.

One act of the dynamiter makes the whole world kin.

It strikes us that perhaps certain people are protesting overmuch.

There is some talk of organizing a female auxiliary to the Ananias Club.

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend."

Newspapers can be rehabilitated with money and time. A human life can never be restored.

Pity the man who still sticks to the straw hat. It is quite evident he is one of the ultimate consumers.

With Mrs. Bellamy Storer heaving a few bricks at the colonel, we may soon expect Carrie Nation to join the hammer chorus.

The light batting averages of the Japanese baseball players in Los Angeles is explained by the fact that they make such excellent waiters.

It has been discovered that the digits of 1912 add up 13. That means trouble for somebody on the national Democratic ticket, two years hence.

Baseball players are preparing to organize a new league, drawing a magna charta, so to speak. Meanwhile they are drawing their magna salaries.

Ex-Secretary Garfield will stump Ohio for Harding for Governor. The harmony machine appears to be in full blast and running double time, in Ohio.

Will the visiting bankers kindly take a look at our growing bank clearings? They are doing the aviation stunt. Los Angeles strives to please in every department.

The number of marriage licenses issued to aged women by the County Clerk has served one good purpose. It has enabled us to get a line on some of the belated brides.

It is quite possible that some of the dynamiters who devastated the Coeur d'Alene district in Idaho, and killed scores of innocent people, have been operating in Los Angeles.

The United States Court of Customs is wrestling with the question, "Is a hen a bird?" If she is a California hen and properly equipped, we should say that she was a gold mine.

The noble dead who perished in the blowing up of The Times building paid the last tribute of their devotion to the cause of industrial freedom with their lives. Green be the turf above them!

The Times is not as handsome typographically as it was, but give us time. Rome was not built in a day. The result of a half century of work cannot be duplicated in the twinkling of an eye.

The woman cop on the Los Angeles police force does not carry a club or a gun. She has no use for either. If a jag ward arrested by her he would undoubtedly think that it was wifey on his trail, and meekly follow along.

Champ Clark says that when the Democrats come into power they will reduce the tariff to a revenue basis and increase the trade with other countries by reciprocity treaties. If reciprocity is a good thing, why was it not commendable during the Cleveland administration, when the Democratic party set its face against it?

The Mexicans are carrying on a good roads project, being now at work on a macadam highway to connect the City of Mexico with Acapulco, on the Pacific side. Seventy-eight of the two hundred miles have been completed. The road is along a trail that was a famous avenue of trade in the days of the Spanish in Mexico.

Gov. Harmon has been asked to suspend Mayor Marshall, the dilly-dallying Mayor of Columbus, O., on account of his suspension in treating the street railway strikers in that city. It appears that Marshall mixed a bit of politics in his alleged efforts to control the mob and that he failed to accomplish anything. It is always so when a public official bows the knee to the lawless for any cause.

THE UNTOUCHED EAGLE.

The one place in the Times building that was not shattered by the explosion was its tower, and the one object that was not blackened by the smoke was the stone eagle, which stands as ever perched upon the summit of the tower, with wings outstretched.

O you anarchic scum, you cowardly murderers, you leeches upon honest labor, you midnight assassins, you whose hands are dripping with the innocent blood of your victims, you against whom the wails of poor widows and the cries of fatherless children are ascending to the Great White Throne, go, mingle with the crowd, on the street corners, look upon the crumbled and blackened walls, look at the ruins wherein are buried the calcined remains of those whom you murdered, and then look up—if you dare raise your eyes in that direction—and behold the stone image of the eagle that you could not reach. Behold the emblem of the piercing eyes that will discover you. Freedom that you vainly endeavored to destroy, of the Eternal Justice that will surely reach you both now and hereafter.

ROLL CALL OF THE DEAD.

When the roll was silently called under the ruined walls of the old gray fortress of The Times on Saturday morning last, twenty-one comrades who were in the ranks a few short hours before failed to answer to their names. Yet in that grim hour hope had not fled; these men were simply reported "missing." But when night had come the truth was fully known and the sinister word "dead" was placed with heart-breaking reluctance against each well-loved and long familiar name.

And this is all that we can think of now—the dead. The ranks have been reformed, the drum beat sounds again, the bugle sings, the colors are unfurled anew. But the dead come not. Today and tomorrow and throughout the morrows that are still to be, the roll will be called, but these who have fallen in the fight will answer nevermore until the last Great Day.

Death is very old and disaster is not new. And well inured to the sight of both are we whose work it is to chronicle the world's history day by day. Life's tragedy and its comedy as well are always present with the men who make great newspapers. We are bidden to attend upon sorrow and upon joy. But it is harder to set down our own grief than another's. It is more difficult to picture death and portray disaster standing within our own doors than it was when they stood without.

Henceforth, all these things—death, disaster, loss and sorrow—shall bear a deeper meaning to the living men of The Times whose work it is to report and print the news. Standing among our own dead we shall more fully know how, in the mutations of time, they will feel who must stand also among the dead who shall be theirs. If it be upon a field of battle we shall better know what is in the hearts of those who search the black and bloody scene for those who have fallen. Wherever it be that wreck and ruin hears the sob and wail of broken hearts we shall know then full well what it is that grips the souls of those who sorrow. We also have bent above our dead; we, too, have faced disaster.

If these, our comrades who have fallen, had died with even the merest fighting chance on their side, we would grieve for them just the same, yet there would be no bitterness in our hearts. But to think that they had to die as they did is a maddening thought. Young men they were, most of them with wives and babies that await them now in vain in once happy homes. Kind and gentle they were, honest and brave, with every right to live. Yet in the mid-hour of the night, at their posts of duty, toiling while the world slept, they were stricken down without a moment's warning by the hands of fiendish assassins so cowardly, so unspeakably brutal, that there are no words in any tongue to give them names.

The ranks have been re-formed, the colors are again unfurled, the battle goes on. God lives and His justice is immutable and certain. There is a highest heaven and a blackest hell. For us who have survived there is still the day's work to do. But we cannot forget our dead. God's peace be upon them all. God grant that we shall meet them again in a better world, when, some day, the roll shall be called and we, like them, will not be here to answer.

CONSERVATION OF OIL LANDS.

In an address made before the American Mining Congress, Mr. S. C. Graham, an oil operator, argued that in future the oil lands belonging to the government ought not to be patented, but should be leased perpetually for a cash royalty per barrel, to be paid to the government, on the oil extracted, and the leases sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash. If oil lands should be leased at all, the obviously fair method of exacting a royalty would be to exact one in kind. Oil varies in price as much as copper or potatoes, and to fix a royalty at a certain sum would sometimes be unjust to the lessor and sometimes unjust to the lessee. Oil leases between private individuals usually, if not uniformly, call for one-eighth of the production delivered at the mouth of the well, or one-eighth of the gross amount of money received by the lessee from the purchaser.

But there is no system of leasing government oil lands that could be adopted that would not inevitably tend to create a monopoly of oil production and sale by the companies who now own patented lands. Future locators of oil lands would work under the serious disadvantage of being compelled to pay a royalty, which their competitors who owned patented lands would escape paying. The producer of oil, or iron, or copper, or lumber, or coal, or grain, who pays no royalty to the government on his production has an advantage over a producer from whom a royalty is exacted, and the advantage proposed by Mr. Graham, of one-eighth of the yield, would be an advantage that would discourage, if not stifle, competition from future locators of oil lands. Twelve and one-half per cent. is a larger percentage of profit than is usually made by manufacturers on their outputs or on merchants from their sales.

With a system of taxation by means of sales of leases, and the exaction of royalties on products of oil lands, in operation, how long would it take for the owners of patented lands in Kern county to get together and form a combination to limit production and fix prices at a rate that would afford them an enormous profit, at the expense of the manufacturing and other interests of Los Angeles? They could prevent competition whenever it appeared by the simple process of temporarily dropping prices to a level that would still afford them a slight profit, while it would inflict a serious loss upon their royalty-paying competitors.

In commerce and in production "the race is to the swift and the battle to the strong," but the race track and the battlefield should be open to all on equal terms. If you hobble one of the runners and leave the limbs of the other unfettered; if you arm one of the fighters with a club and strip the other of all weapons, the race and the fight will be to the unfettered and armed monopolists.

The policy of leasing oil lands as advocated by Mr. Graham, and the journals which indorse his position, is not conservation of natural resources; it is conservation of monopoly. It is conservation of the privileges of those who have acquired wealth against the endeavors of those who are seeking to acquire it; it is a conservation of the power of those inside the house to bar the door against those who seek to enter it; it is a conservation of the past against the future. When the American people fully comprehend the import of the word "conservation" they will banish it from their political vocabularies. "Royalty" was a word hateful to the fathers of the republic, and "royalties" on the product of oil fields or mines is not less hateful today to the pioneers who seek to develop and use the natural resources of the earth.

WHERE THE BLAME LIES.

Gov. Gillett never spoke a truer word than, when commenting on the outrage at The Times office, he said: "The labor unionists will have to be blamed for the crime until shown they are not guilty, as everything points to a desire to wipe out the property and lives of those who have been fighting organized labor for years."

This is the outspoken language of an unbiased outsider and it undoubtedly expresses the thought of the people of the country, who are horrified at the awful length to which the conspirators against The Times went.

It is useful at this moment to go back over the history of the past few months and trace the unionite movement which resulted in the assassination of twenty employees of The Times, in the injury of more than a score and in the destruction of valuable property. The fire which followed the explosion destroyed our files, but we have no need to refer to back numbers of the paper, for the incidents are indelibly engraved on the memories of many men.

It was early in the year that labor leaders in San Francisco, disappointed that they had been beaten in numerous other attacks to unionize Los Angeles, determined on a great campaign to subjugate this free city. As a starter, strikes in the metal trades and of the brewery workers were called, and men came down from San Francisco to teach the local workmen how to conduct strikes in the real rough-house style. They thought that by brutality, intimidation and strong-arm methods they could pull off the men who took the places of the strikers and frighten the employers into conceding their demands. As a matter of fact the acts of the savages had the contrary effect; they stiffened the backs of the proprietors of the shops affected and convinced them that Los Angeles must remain a disunionized city.

Failing in their attacks on iron works and breweries the men from San Francisco apparently sent an appeal north to forward more supplies in the way of cash and some of the "higher-ups" in the labor unions. Presidents or secretaries of various unionite bodies shortly thereafter appeared here, and a conference was held in a local hotel.

What happened at this gathering was not made public in detail, but it is significant to note that almost immediately thereafter a fruitless attempt was made to embarrass Gen. Otis and Harry Chandler by swearing out warrants accusing them of criminal libel, that a riot was precipitated at the Alexandria Hotel Annex and unionites attacked the bearers of a corpse, that dynamite was placed in the Hall of Records, near The Times office, that a plot was made against the life of a non-union worker at the hall, that an attempt was planned to mutilate an engineer employed on the building and other men were fearfully beaten by thugs.

The Times, in accordance with its well-defined policy, reported these outrages in full and commented upon them in its usual free and caustic style. It aided the authorities in every way possible to seek out the perpetrators and it encouraged the police department to maintain an ever-ready attitude.

Well, indeed, did the San Francisco unionites know that this newspaper was the chief factor which prevented them entrenching here. The natural assumption, indeed the only assumption, is that they determined on the most fiendish measures in the hope that they would be able to get rid of The Times. They evidently determined at the same time to assassinate Gen. Otis and Mr. Zeehandelaar, the latter secretary of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, which has always stanchly supported the fight for industrial freedom.

Terrified at the popular outburst against the perpetrators of the hideous programme, unionite leaders all over the country hastened to disavow any connection with the fiendish acts. They had not been specifically accused, but they acted as if the cap fitted. They stood not upon the order of their denials, but all denied at once. To them is addressed, in clear, cold accents, public opinion as expressed by Gov. Gillett: Until they show they are not guilty the labor unionists will have to be blamed for the crime.

WELCOME TO BANKERS.

Los Angeles has never before been privileged to welcome so important a convention as that which will hold its initial meeting here today, the American Bankers' Association. American methods of banking have been criticised sometimes, but we can fairly make the assertion that the bankers of this country lead those of the world. They protect and look after the interests of their clients with ability equal to that displayed by any men in the same line of business, yet they have not been ashamed to introduce up-to-date business ideas which their European contemporaries hesitate to adopt for fear of being accused of departing from conservative lines.

Recent tables issued by the National Monetary Commission show that the credit of the United States is the best in the universe, that American securities are better liked even than British and that a most remarkable advance in banking has been shown since this country first took to gathering statistics on the subject in the year 1867.

The bankers and business men of Los Angeles have made ample arrangements for the proper comfort and entertainment of the guests during their stay here. It goes without saying that the visitors will be given ample opportunity to see the city, whose amazing growth has astonished, almost astounded, the census office officials, and that the rich "back country" will be shown to them, with some of its big crops just gathered and others, like oranges and the winter flowers, now getting ready for their gorgeous December and January displays.

The Times, crippled by the bombs of assassins but still in the ring and able to stay there indefinitely, extends heartiest greetings to the 2000 members of the association and bids them take possession of Los Angeles, secure in the knowledge that for them, at any rate, no bombs have been prepared, unless they be joyous outbursts of pleasure.

The peculiar brand of politics that President Woodrow Wilson encounters on his quest for the Governorship of New Jersey will be all Greek to the former head of Princeton.

THE CAUSE MUST WIN.

DRAMATIC.

"KNIGHTHOOD" AT BURBANK.

ROMANCE GIVEN A BRIGHT REVIVAL.

Drama goes back a few Henrys at the Burbank this week, and Manager Morosco fills in between new modern plays, by giving a fine revival of that lively romance of a naughty Princess, "When Knighthood was in Flower."

Paul Kester's dramatization of Charles Major's story has been made upon a snappy collection of scurvy knaves hence the artistic atmosphere is for the most part permeated by the imperious defiance and still more imperious tears of Mary Tudor, who would not wed where they would, and would wed where they would not.

Miss Rambeau played this same Mary Tudor. It was a performance which pleased the audience immensely, but it was not dramatic stuff of as good a sort as Miss Rambeau is capable of putting over. She bit off her spiteful sentences a little too shortly, and as a result her speeches were sometimes indistinct, and they also took on more of a scolding nature than a queen's arch-rage.

However, this was a first performance fault, and one which I have no doubt will have entirely disappeared tonight. In her confused masquerade in male attire Marjorie is simply delicious.

Mr. Beasley as Charles Brandon gives a virile and varied performance in a part which the matinee girl will adore—and which I have no doubt bores Mr. Beasley dreadfully. The modern play, with its real and not altogether heroic men, makes a genuine actor—of the Beasley stamp—ill at ease in a part where he only needs wings to make him an angel. Mr. Beasley gives a dashing characterisation, but I suspect the great modern play and its people have wearied both Mr. Beasley and Miss Rambeau of the artificial stuff that was so prevalent even half a dozen years ago.

The rest of the adventures find worthy assumption David Landau's pleasant manner belie the Duke of Buckingham's villainy, but villian he is. Jack Belgrave gives a good account of himself as the French envoy, and Percy Bronson is a bewitching gallant as Sir Edwin Caskoden. Thomas Woisey finds benign and peaceful portrayal in the person of H. S. Duffield. As the Dauphin David Hartford comes back into resources and resultful character acting. Peter Lang, as Henry VIII, gives the traditional gruffness and vehemence to the part, though somewhat different in facial appearance from the celebrated monarch whose favorite diversion was the excision of his wives's heads.

Miss Travers, who played an "old sad" with artful make-up and appropriate funereal feeling last week, now capers delicately as the laughing and mincing Lady Jane.

The scenery and costuming equipment are better than the play has ever received at this house, though it has had several presentations.

As a week's "best seller" a stock manager would go far to find a more popular bet than this rapid and changeful play of royal adventures.

Jewish Services.

Services in celebration of the Jewish New Year will be held this evening at 5:30 o'clock, Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., and Wednesday at 7:30 a.m. in Sinai Synagogue. The main services will be chanted by Rev. Cantor Muetter of New York, assisted by a male quartette. Rabbi Isidore Myers will preach this evening on "A New Year's Petition;" Tuesday at 10 a.m. on "The Hebrew's Holiest Hope," and Wednesday morning on "The Great Arraignment."

Protest Mass Meeting.

A mass meeting will be held this evening in the Christian Church at Thirty-ninth street and Budlong avenue, at 7:30 o'clock, to voice a protest against further assessments for the condemnation of land to be added to Agricultural Park and street openings. A petition is also being circulated to be presented to the

FEW MARKSMEN PRESENT.

Turners Make Fair Scores in Regular Monthly Shoot—Many Members Out Hunting Quail.

The monthly medal tournament of the shooting section of Los Angeles Turn Verein Germania held yesterday at Schuetzen Park, was affected by the opening of the quail season, the result being a quiet and rather listless contest, in which the medals were captured for the ensuing month with comparatively low scores.

In the championship class Joe Singer won with a total of 199, Otto Pachmeyer and Capt. Chris Kremple following with 189 each. Henry Pfirrmann led all the remaining marksmen, with 186, taking the first-class medal. Secretary A. Mass got the second-class medal with 176, and Frank Hubsch the third with 170. Mrs. C. Kremple scored 172.

A much larger list of marksmen is expected at the range next Sunday, when the park will be given up to the annual picnic of the members and friends of the Schuetzen Park Association. Special shooting events will be arranged by Capt. Krempel, while the park recreations will be under the supervision of Manager James Meyers.

THEIR OWN LITTLE COMEDY.

Actor Manager and Actress Elope Between Matinee and Night Performance.

Gavin Young, actor and stage manager of the Burbank Theater, was leading man in a little comedy in real life Saturday, wherein he eloped with Miss Henrietta Holly, between the matinee and night performance at the theater.

A rumor had been slipping around among the members of the Burbank company to the effect that certain high jinks were to be held when Mr. Young and Miss Holly married, October 28, having previously been set as the date for the nuptials.

Yesterday noon Mr. Young went to the County Clerk's office and obtained a marriage license, after which he telephoned to his bride-to-be to meet him at Christ Church immediately after the matinee. She was at the appointed place on time, and Rev. Baker P. Lee performed the marriage ceremony, with the janitor of the church and his wife as witnesses.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Young went to the home of the bride's parents and obtained the parental blessings.

Hay Makes Hot Fire.

Fire of unknown origin yesterday afternoon, destroyed about eighty tons of hay belonging to S. J. Barnett, a liveryman and hay dealer at Jefferson and Wesley street. The fire was discovered about 5 o'clock and it was extinguished about 7 o'clock but to insure against a recurrence, firemen with a line of hose were kept at the scene until late last night. The hay was stacked in a vacant lot and no buildings were damaged, though the flames reached to a great height, gave out intense heat and sent great clouds of sparks soaring high into the air. The loss was estimated at about $1300.

The College of Musicians of Los Angeles will entertain the members of the Michigan Society in Blanchard Hall, tomorrow evening.

LONG BEACH.

PAY OWN BILLS IF INJURED.

RULING OF CITY OFFICERS APPLIES TO POLICE.

Result Will Not Tend to the Guardians of the Town's Peace Taking Any Reckless Chances—Two Recent Cases Cited Which Apply to the Matter.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 2.—Police officers of Long Beach who do their duty and are injured in consequence must pay their own doctor bills. This is the dictum of the City Auditor and the City Council, a ruling which will not tend in future to the officers taking any reckless chances.

Two months ago a little girl was attacked by a dog which subsequently developed rabies, and was bitten. Officer Remelt rushed to her rescue and in tearing the brute from the child, was also bitten. On the advice of physicians both victims were hurried to Los Angeles, where they received the Pasteur treatment. Last Friday, Officer Remelt presented to the auditor a hospital bill for $91.

The latter promptly refused payment and referred it to the City Council with the ruling that the city had no authority to pay any such bills and if the Council persisted he would decline to pay it until forced to do so by a court order. Then the Council by a vote of 4 to 2, sustained the Auditor and the policeman will have to pay his own doctor bill.

Several months ago Officer Austin arrested a drunken man and was taking him to the station when the prisoner drew the policeman's gun from his pocket and shot at him, then hit him over the head. In the struggle a plate glass window was broken. The Council refused to pay either for the window or for the physician who was called to dress the policeman's injuries.

PLAN TO ENLARGE CHURCH.

Plans for the enlargement of St. Luke's Church have been completed and work will begin at once, widening the building forty feet by extending the side walls north and south, each twenty feet. This will add about 200 to the seating capacity.

The Times' travesty has led to extra precautions at the Craig ship plant. Four men are constantly on guard at the plant, but last night the force was doubled and this arrangement will be continued indefinitely. Several weeks ago officers got wind of a purported attempt to use dynamite at the plant, but investigation proved it to have been only idle talk, as the rest of the summer indefinitely. In future, however, the plant will be carefully guarded.

BANKERS AT PASADENA.

Arrival of Delegates to Los Angeles Convention Marks Opening of the Hotel Season.

PASADENA, Oct. 2.—The Hotel Maryland is filled with delegates to the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, which is to be held in Los Angeles this week. During the sojourn in Southern California the New York State delegation will make its headquarters at the Maryland. The annual opening of the Maryland for winter business took place Saturday night, so that everything is shipshape for first-class entertainment for the visitors.

BIG CONTRACT LET.

A contract was signed late Saturday night by the Building Committee of the Y.M.C.A. and the James A. Harmon Company of Pasadena for the new Y.M.C.A. building to be erected at the corner of Marengo avenue and Ramona street; consideration $90,000. This does not include the plumbing and heating work. When completed the building will have cost over $120,000. It will be ready by [illegible].

BOARD OF TRADE GRILLED.

At a meeting of the Municipal Light League Saturday night the Board of Trade was severely criticised for not supporting the Municipal Lighting Company. It was pointed out that the board worked for different bond elections for municipal water, for a city playground and public building, is now boosting the Arroyo Seco bridge, has taken steps to straighten out the tangled water question, but has continued to patronize the Edison Company. Resolutions were passed demanding that it support the city's lighting plant.

Dress Trimmings
Opening of Beautiful Foreign Novelties

The wonderful variety of exquisite effects make it safe to predict one of the greatest seasons in years for richness and elaboration of trimming. Nothing is too rich or too magnificent, yet throughout there is true harmony.

The influence of the Orient is prominent. Persian colorings are everywhere, and many designs are characteristically Eastern. Metallic effects are favorites, beads of rubber or wood sprinkle everything, and the color gamut has apparently no end. Possibly the most interesting are:

GARNITURES, NOVELTY ALL-OVERS, BANDS AND GALLOONS, many of them separable into trimming motifs, all of them made almost entirely by hand in exquisite fashion.

MARABOU, in colors and cream, will be extremely popular this season for trimming hats, evening wraps and dresses; the recent Fashion Show strikingly exemplified this tendency. We have practically every shade in stock.

Sale of Tailored Waists at $1.50

With tailored waists more in vogue than they've been for years, this sale will meet with enthusiastic response from women who like their trim neatness:

DOGGING IT.

VERNONS LOSE BY FORFEIT.

UMPIRE GIVES ANGELS BALL GAME.

DELMAS SPRAINS ANKLE IN SLIDING TO BASE.

CARSON WINS IN MATINEE IN COMMON CANTER.

Los Angeles, 9; Vernon, 0. Morning game forfeited to Los Angeles owing to the dilatory tactics of Vernon team.

Vernon, 3; Los Angeles, 0. Afternoon game.

The Vernon team has a fine chance to contribute $500 to the general expense fund of the Coast League, for Umpire Van Haltren forfeited the game at Vernon yesterday morning to the Los Angeles team by a score of 9 to 0, owing to the dilatory tactics of the Vernon club.

With the score tied at 1 to 1 in the ninth inning, an extra inning was necessary, for the teams had twenty minutes in which to play before the time limit of two hours would be up. In the first half of the tenth inning Los Angeles made two runs after some delays by Hogan and his merry men, and in the last half of the tenth, when Vernon went to bat, he used all the little tricks of baseball in order to delay the play. Umpire Van Haltren finally became so disgusted with the business that he forfeited the game to Los Angeles by a score of 9 to 0.

In the afternoon at Chutes Park Nagle and Carson were pitted against each other, and Carson won easily by a score of 2 to 0, for he allowed but three hits, and the Angels never had a chance to score.

FINE BALL PLAYING.

The morning game, aside from being forfeited was a fine contest, for while Los Angeles made ten hits it could not get a run until the ninth inning, while Vernon got but four hits. The only error in the game was in the fifth inning, when Castleton made a wild throw to first base.

With two out in the ninth inning for the Angels, Hallinan hit to left, stole second and scored on a drive by Delmas to left. This run tied the score, for Vernon had made a run in the fourth on Burrell's single, a wild pitch and two infield outs.

With twenty minutes to play before the time limit would stop the game Daley opened the reluctant tenth by beating out an infield single. Nast sacrificed, Wheeler flew to left and Dillon doubled against the right field fence, scoring Daley.

About this time Hap Hogan decided to waste some time by changing his battery, so he took out Shafer and Brown and put in Hitt and Ilmself. Of course it took Hap a long time to adjust his shin guards, and then Hitt had to pitch five balls to warm up on and Hap had to put his mask on and give a lot of instructions to his players.

Hap was so interested in killing time that he allowed Dillon to slowly trot to third base and later to the plate without making an effort to catch Frank. Murphy, who followed Dillon, finally got out and then Vernon went to bat. If Vernon could prevent the tenth inning from being finished the score would be counted for nine full innings only.

Kit Brashear was first to bat, and he did not break any records getting ready to bat. Finally he popped to Nast, playing short. Lindsay is a good hitter, but Hap sent in Willett to bat for him after two balls and one strike had been called on Lindsay. Willett fooled around a while and was hit by pitcher. Then Hogan went to bat, and with two balls and one strike called on him suddenly decided that Hasty should bat for him. He took himself out and Hasty went in.

All of these changes used up valuable time and Dillon became so wrathy that he rushed up to Van Haltren at the plate and complained that Hogan was intentionally delaying the game. In the wrangle that followed, Van Haltren became so disgusted over Hogan's tactics and the many changes he had to announce that he threw off his mask and forfeited the game to Los Angeles, 9 to 0, with one out for Vernon and the score 3 to 1 in favor of Los Angeles.

Bernard started to play right field and was in the game for three innings. After making his hit in the third inning, and while on first base, he called Umpire Hildebrand a "fat head" and Hildy threw him into the clubhouse.

In the sixth inning Delmas hit to left field and in sliding to second base to beat the throw in of the ball turned his right ankle and had to be carried from the field on the shoulders of his fellow-players.

CARSON TOO STRONG.

There was nothing to the second game but Carson, for he tied the Angels into knots in the first inning and kept them there. Nagle was not so fortunate, for Vernon made one easy run in the seventh off a single, two sacrifices and an error, and two more easy ones arrived in the eighth. Kit Brashear's homer over the left fence was one of these, and Carson's single and Carlisle's double to right made the other one.

ERRORS HELP SEALS.

LA LONGE IN WRONG.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Sacramento went to pieces this afternoon at Recreation Park and the home team annexed the game by the score of 6 to 2. In the morning with the score 1 to 1, in the ninth, the visitors stepped out in the extra frame and, landing on Henley, for four hits, drove in three runs. They held the locals runless in the last half of the inning, and made their record five out of seven games for the series.

La Longe's three errors in attempts to tag base runners gave the locals the afternoon game. Sacramento led with the score 2 to 1, until the sixth inning, when Fitzgerald was found for three hits. Poor support passed the three base runners to the plate and the game was lost. Scores:

Morning game:

Sacramento, 4; hits, 12; errors, 2.

NEW RECORDS MADE

BY DE ROSIER AND WHITTIER.

Jake De Rosier rode an Indian motorcycle 100 miles in 81 minutes at the motordrome yesterday, lowering the world's record which was held by himself, 5m. 16s. F. E. Whittier covered fifty miles with a Merkel on the same track in 36m. 30s. breaking the world's record held by De Rosier by four minutes.

Whittier started out after the 100-mile record but broke a valve stem at the end of the fifty-third mile and had to abandon the attempt. His fastest mile was made in 42 2-3s. and no mile was ridden slower than 44s.

Whittier was the first to get a sanction from the F.A.M. to try for records at the motordrome but had no sooner announced his intention than De Rosier got sanction to defend his record against him, which resulted in lower time for both the fifty and 100-mile events.

PEACE UP TO GOMEZ.

Cuban Executive Faces Problem of Peaceful Election on Island—Nine Parties in Field.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

HAVANA, Oct. 2.—With the approach of the elections on November 1, the second held by the Cuban government without American supervision, there has been perceptible a growing hope that what remains of the campaign and the electoral struggle itself may be passed without serious disorders.

The first Cuban election, that of 1904, was concededly carried by fraud. This fact led to the revolution of August, 1906, the overthrow of the Palma administration, and the second American intervention, which continued until Gen. Gomez was inaugurated.

It now remains to be seen whether the administration of President Gomez is competent to guarantee the people of Cuba unimpeachable elections.

Most of the candidates for the various offices have now been nominated and in Havana alone there are no less than five parties in the (guberna) tired (nasty) set are openly [illegible] the historic Liberal party (Miguelists); the Independent Liberal party (headed by Gen. Nunez); the Worthingmen's party, and the party of Young Cuba.

LAKE STEAMER FOUNDERS.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—The packet freighter New York, operated by the New York Steamship Company, of this city, foundered this morning in Thunder Bay, Lake Huron. Her crew was picked up by the steamer Matidata. Details will not be known until the steamer reaches Cleveland tomorrow. The loss will probably reach more than $75,000.

OVER COLORADO.

PHOENIX RACE LIST LARGE.

MANY PLAN TO ENTER SAND RUN IN COMING MONTH

COURSE IS IN FAIR SHAPE IN ONLY FEW PLACES

KNOX FINISHES WITH NIKRENT HOLDING WHEEL.

Keen interest is being taken in the Los Angeles-Phoenix automobile race. Following the series of calamities in the Vanderbilt Cup race, the dealers of Los Angeles favor the desert sand battle where the danger is not half as great as it is in a contest like the Vanderbilt, where almost half a hundred cars are speeding faster than a mile a minute over a course that is not in good shape.

Watching the run carefully to San Bernardino, where there is oftentimes obstructions in the road, the race should be one of the best ever held as this year the course out of town is to be carefully guarded and not a person needs to be injured provided the cars are driven in strict observance to the rules. Referee John S. Mitchell, is certain this is to be one of the greatest contests ever pulled off in Southern California.

The course is in fair shape as far as Whitewater and from there on the sand is bad. The road is hard through Indio, though in places it is in fair shape until Mecca is reached. After leaving Mecca the deep sand is encountered and the real race begins. This is one of the real race places of roads over which an automobile race is held.

HARD RUN.

From the fact that this road is hard to negotiate, and also because it is a severe test on any motor car the dealers here are anxious to enter the contest and show what a car can do under such a test. There is a possibility that at least fifteen machines will leave the Hollenbeck Hotel on the night of November 5, as every dealer who can secure a car is almost certain car is one of the fastest in the race, and should show to advantage in the contest.

Joe Nikrent, who won the contest last year, made the run to Phoenix last week with the Knox car. He piloted the Buick to victory in November of 1909, and this season is satisfied that he can win with the big Knox, as the car is one of the fastest in the race.

No effort was made by Nikrent to break any record with the Knox. He made the run comfortably in three days, sending the Knox over part of the course at speed and taking the car slowly over other sections in order to thoroughly acquaint himself with every inch of the long stretch. This means that Nikrent is taking more care this season than last as he hopes to turn the same trick that Harry Grant did in the Vanderbilt, by winning the Phoenix twice in succession.

MANY ENTRANTS.

Another entrant that should show to advantage, is the Apperson with Harris Hanshue at the wheel. "Han" has been over the course before and his chain-driven car make great speed along the sandy highway if given the opportunity. Shettler plans to bring the car out to Los Angeles after the Grand Prix race in the East and get it in condition for the Phoenix event.

There is a possibility that a Durocar and a Kisselkar are to be contenders in the desert sand battle. A Franklin is one of the likely cars in the contest. The Marathon has been withdrawn from the race, but a Velie is to be entered and this adds to the list of starters. E. Rogers Stearns, manager for the Standard Motor Car Company, should reach here in about ten days and the car should follow later.

Another likely starter is the Maxwell, which Clarence Smith is to drive. This fast motor should make good over such a road. A Mercer, piloted by C. H. Biglow, is another interesting car in the long desert grind. F. A. Reaton is considering entering an Overland and if he does, will drive the car himself. A Chalmer-Detroit also may be started. An Elmore is a sure starter and a likely contender.

GLOOMY.

POOR PROSPECTS FOR POMONANS.

FEW VETERANS RETURN TO BE GRIDIRON CANDIDATES

Clary Expected to Star With Capt. Shutt in Backfield—Coach Stanton Must Build Up Entire Team From Raw Material With the Exception of Four Old Men.

Football prospects are not very bright at Pomona College, according to Manager "Kem" Jones, who was in the city yesterday. Only four of last year's 'varsity men have returned to the institution, and he predicts that Coach Stanton will have the biggest job of his life in trying to turn out a championship team this season.

The men who have returned are all live ones, however, and will make a good nucleus around which to form a team of green material.

Shutt is the only back-field monogram man of last year to put in an appearance, and his three team mates who have returned are Davis, Hentschke and Jennings, who played center, left guard and right end, respectively.

The second team men of last year who will likely make good on the 'varsity this season are Nye, Crawford and Clary. Coach Stanton thought that Clary was the best man on the Pomona squad of 1910, but could not play him because of the residence clause in the conference agreement. Clary played on the Forbes team in 1908 and was picked as one of the best men that ever represented the institution.

Nye and Crawford both tried to land a position at end last year, and the latter is to try for the berth on the team this season.

About sixty men have been enrolled in the freshman class, and Jones says that there are a number of them that have beef enough to make first-class line men, but none of the prep school stars of last year have entered the institution.

Coach Stanton will be handicapped by the other Southern California coaches in getting his team in shape for the first game, as both Occidental and U.S.C. opened their fall terms two weeks before the Congregationalists.

Taking ways, some folks have, sure enough. While they're out here, though, the bankers can take anything they want to, except cold, and we'll be glad to let them have it. A lot of them will take back a better opinion of Los Angeles tailoring for having seen our windows.

PYE WINS HONORS.

Crack Australian Bicycle Rider Is First in Contest With Duer at Fiesta Park Track.

Ernie Pye again took the laurels at the bicycle race meet at Fiesta Park by defeating Ray Duer in the motor-paced event yesterday afternoon.

The race was a three-heat affair, best two in three. Pye followed his pace like a veteran, taking the first and last heats from Duer, the western motor-paced champion, by beating him at least 100 yards in the two heats he won. The second heat was Duer's by about fifty yards, Pye losing his pace on the last lap.

The card put on by the management yesterday was the best that has been seen during the meet, although the crowd was not as large as was present a week ago.

At the conclusion of the races a lacrosse game was played between the University and Los Angeles teams, which ended in a tie score of 5 to 5.

The results of the races:

Half-mile Overland Club handicap: Won by F. Goodwin, E. Rusher second, F. Hults third; time, 1m. 3 2-5s.

Half-mile open professional: Won by G. Walker, Red Brodbeck second, B. Carshake third; time, 1m. 11s.

Australian novelty race: Won by Walker, T. McCoy second.

One-mile amateur handicap: Won by J. Huey, F. Goodwin second, F. Fearne third; time, 2m. 11 3-5s.

Three-mile motor-paced match race: Won by Pye, Duer second; time, first heat, 6m. 12s.; second heat, 5m. 9s.; third heat, 5m. 17s.

Three-mile motorcycle match race: Won by Al Ward, M. J. Graves second.

Two-mile professional handicap: Won by Brodbeck, J. A. Berryessa second, Walker third; time, 4m. 15 3-5s.

Around The World

By the "OFFICE BOY"

When one arrives in India they must purchase a supply of bedding and towels to be used in sleeping berths on trains and in private houses and hotels. It is not realized, yet it is true, that the only thing in the way of bedding furnished in either hotels or sleeping cars is a mattress, so one must carry their bedding with them or do without. The sleeping cars are built of the plainest and cheapest partially smoothed boards and covered with a coat of dull paint and with nowhere a thought of decoration. The floors are bare, with the exception of the dust. Across one end of the car is a netting for the accommodation of hand baggage and on each side of the car, running fore and aft, is a broad leather-covered sofa, used to sit on during the daytime and to sleep on during the night-time. Hanging over each sofa, by straps, is a wide, flat, leather-covered shelf, which is also used to sleep on. In the daytime this can be hitched up against the wall and then one has a big, unencumbered and most comfortable room to spread out in. No car in any country can equal it for comfort and privacy. If one has a clever bearer, he can arrange with the station master, who is usually a native or half-caste, to have the car alone, and then it is like traveling in one's own private car. Of course the poorer natives all travel third-class the native merchants and officers travel second-class and the tourists and English officers and their families are the only ones who use the first-class carriages. As the tourist season was pretty well over when we crossed India, we were fortunate, as we not only had cars to ourselves but we got the best rooms in the hotels.

A haberdasher would have a hard time to cater to the Hindu trade, as their turbans and suits consist of a few yards of cheap cotton cloth. The former is usually dyed some bright color. But an American, in his swell Hart Schaffner & Marx Suit, Stetson Hat, etc., is just as much of a curiosity to them, no doubt.

WIFE'S 'FINERY' IS CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Dresses and Furs Seized at Customs House May Defeat Candidate

WAR IS ON IN VIRGINIA

Democrat's Family Causes Trouble in District Among the Poor People

BRISTOL (Va.) Oct. 1.—A woman's wardrobe has become an important issue in the hotly contested Ninth congressional district of Virginia. Henry C. Stuart is the Democratic nominee, and his Republican opponent is Representative C. B. Slemp, the lone Republican congressman from the Old Dominion.

Recently when Mr. Stuart and his wife and daughter and governess were returning from Paris some twenty-five pieces of baggage were seized by inspectors in the New York customs house for non-payment of duty, and the Republicans are using this against Stuart in the campaign now on, in which the entire Democracy of the state is behind Stuart in an effort to displace young Slemp.

Henry C. Stuart is said to be several times a millionaire. He is known as the "Cattle King of the South." His short-horn cattle, which he raises for export, graze on hundreds of southwest Virginia hills.

More than two years ago Mrs. Stuart became ill and her physicians recommended a stay in southern France. She went there with her daughter, maid and governess and remained two years. When the Stuarts called at the American consulate at Paris the son of the consul advised them that under a ruling of the treasury department persons remaining out of the United States two years or longer were entitled to be classed as non-residents, and were therefore not liable for duty on goods they imported.

Acting upon this information, Mr. Stuart made out a declaration for himself only, but when the party landed at New York some twenty-five pieces of baggage belonging to Mrs. Stuart were seized, and here the party learned that the former ruling had been changed and that they were liable for duty.

It was a trying time for the Virginia aristocrats. The inspectors went over the goods and appraised them. They included scores of pairs of costly silk stockings, silk lingerie, furs, etc., and Mr. Stuart is said to have been compelled to pay about $3000 before he could recover the goods. No penalty was attached, upon recommendation of the legal department of the revenue service. The goods included a fur coat, said to have cost $1000, and other articles of female apparel.

Mr. Stuart had already been nominated for congress by the Democrats, and within two weeks after the seizure in New York harbor a Republican spellbinder at a big mass-meeting in Wise county declared that if the Democratic nominee had gone through life treating his fellow-men as he tried to treat the government it was not surprising that he had a barrel of money. Instantly the Democratic press denounced this use of the custom house incident as unfair, but the Republicans continued, and it has become known in the fourteen counties of the district as the "trunk" issue.

Another feature of the matter is being used by the Republicans to a large extent. The New York papers carried stories of the seizure and told in detail of the wealth of finery that was contained in the twenty-five trunks. While the Republican leaders "higher up" are attempting, ostensibly, to discourage the use of the matter in the campaign against Stuart, the smaller Republican orators are using it to prejudice the poorer class of people against Stuart on account of his wealth. One is said to have declared that if the Democratic nominee's wife had a coat worth more than the ordinary Southwest Virginia farm.

Theodore Roosevelt comes to Bristol October 7 to speak for Representative Slemp in his attempt to be re-elected. Slemp was connected in political circles with an alleged fraudulent land deal at Roanoke several years ago, and it is believed that the Democrats will bring this out to counteract the use of the "trunk" issue if necessary.

The Ninth district is one made up largely of the poorer classes. The Democrats fear that the continual use of the "trunk" issue will array the prejudices of the poorer people against Stuart, and it may be that the expensive wardrobe which Mrs. Stuart brought home will operate to defeat her husband for congress this fall.

BREWERS WILL EVADE INCREASED LICENSES

Biography of Lord Beaconsfield Almost Ready for Press

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The big English brewing companies are now engaged in organizing a campaign throughout the country for shifting on the rates the extra burdens imposed upon them by the increased license duties of Chancellor Lloyd George. It seems to be anticipated that the recent decision in the case of "The Crown and Shuttle" at Shoreditch, in which the courts held that allowance must be made for the increased duties in assessing public houses for rates, will not be taken to the house of lords, as was at first contemplated, but will be accepted by the local bodies generally. In this event the brewers, who in this country own the majority of the public houses, will avoid much of the burden imposed by the budget, and arrangements are being made all over the country to set in motion the machinery necessary to secure the reduction.

It is calculated that the number of premises affected is about 10,000, the seriousness of the matter from the rate payers' standpoint will be readily apparent. It looks, in fact, very much as if the effect of the new duties will be to make the rates pay contribution to the taxes.

The long overdue biography of the earl of Beaconsfield is to see the light at last. The publication of the book had been so often announced and then postponed that people had almost come to the conclusion that it would never appear at all. The work was first undertaken by the late Lord Rowton, who had been Beaconsfield's private secretary, but from one cause or another he never seemed to make any headway with it. After his death, however, W. F

The long overdue biography of the earl of Beaconsfield is to see the light at last. The publication of the book has been so often announced and then postponed that people had almost come to the conclusion that it would never appear at all. The work was first undertaken by the late Lord Rowton, who had been Beaconsfield's private secretary, but from one cause or another he never seemed to make any headway with it. After his death, Sir W. F. Moneypenny, formerly of the Times, was given the commission, and Mr. Murray now announces that the preparation of the life has reached a stage which justifies the publication of the first volume. The work, of course, is based upon Lord Beaconsfield's private papers. The first volume will cover the period from Disraeli's birth in 1804 to his entry into parliament in 1837. Mr. Murray hopes that the remaining volumes will follow at short and regular intervals. It is intended that simultaneously with the publication of the work in England an American edition will be issued in New York.

The statement was made by a medical man at an inquest at Birkenhead this week that many girls ate raw rice to improve the complexion. In the case before the jury, which concerned the death of a young woman named Mary Cadwallader, it was stated that she had had an inordinate appetite for raw rice, and this had caused her death.

FOLEY STREET BLAMED FOR BAD NAME OF DUBLIN

Alderman Declares One Policeman Could Abate Nuisance

DUBLIN, Oct. 1.—The members of the Dublin corporation are perturbed at the bad name the city has acquired through the presence of undesirables on Foley street, and want the police to adopt more energetic measures to cope with the evil. At the last meeting Alderman Delahunt moved a resolution of the public health committee stating that its attention had more than once been drawn to the most undesirable state of things that prevailed in the immediate vicinity of the Foley street dwellings for the working classes. They considered that the state of the locality could be very much improved by more stringent action on the part of the police authorities—the loitering and solicitations of undesirable characters could at least be prevented by adequate policing.

The town clerk said he had written a strong letter to the chief commissioner of police on the subject, but had got no reply. Alderman Thomas Kelly said in consequence of police methods over which the corporation had no control, Dublin had got a very bad name. In the present edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica Dublin was held up as being the most immoral city in Europe, and to get its equal one had to go to some of the lesser known cities of Asia Minor. Mr. Briscoe said Foley street should be called Folly street. Alderman Farrell said the trouble and disgrace in that neighborhood were caused by half a dozen or a dozen women, with whom one policeman, if he got proper instructions, could deal. Of course, if a political meeting was being held sixty policemen would be immediately on the spot. The people who controlled the police were not friendly to the city, and wanted it to have a bad and immoral name, and that was why they did not allow the police to do their duty. William McCarthy considered the police authorities had treated the corporation very badly, particularly the chief commissioner of police, in refusing a reply to a letter of the town clerk. The lord mayor said Dublin was not an immoral city; it compared favorably with any other city in the world; but the carrion crows were responsible for the circulation of this slander. There was no reason in the world why the police should not patrol that district. The citizens of Dublin had to complain of the blackguard soldiery who frequented O'Connell street. The report was adopted.

LIBERAL SPENDERS SWARM AT TROUVILLE

French Editor Wounded in Duel Fails to Note Injury

PARIS, Oct. 1.—There is more money going about Trouville, the fashionable watering place, this year than ever there was before, according to experts who can estimate these things. The Rue de Paris is full of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of clothes and jewels, especially pearls. Everybody seems to possess a 60 or 80-horsepower motor car. At the green tables many players drop or take up $20,000 or $25,000 of losses or winnings a night at baccarat, and as for hotel charges, it is said they are "unimaginable." Two examples given of "quiet dinners" do seem rather strong. At one of the chief restaurants were dining two separate parties. One consisted of a diplomatist and his five guests. The other was a family party, ten in all. Both sets were "quiet people, well known in Parisian society, and the sort of people whose last thought is the world would be to show off and throw their money about. As a matter of fact, both dinners were quite simple, and no extra expensive wines were drunk at either." Yet our informant says that the diplomatist's "addition" ran up to $140 for six people, and that of the family party of ten to $280. "Both parties jibbed a little, but paid," he adds.

Having fought his duel and saved his honor by firing a shot in the air, the editor of a provincial newspaper went back to his desk and the incident had quite left his mind when he felt something strange at his thigh. He looked and found he was bleeding profusely. There was no mistake, he had been wounded, and a doctor was called. The practitioner discovered that a bullet was imbedded in the editor's thigh, some two inches deep, and required extraction. "Why was this not taken notice of on the spot where the duel took place?" he asked. The editor was as much in the dark as the doctor. At the moment of the duel he had fired into the air and his adversary also took a distracted sort of aim. There had evidently been no intention of doing the slightest harm on either side. The editor felt nothing as he left the field and had shaken hands with his antagonist as a sign of reconciliation. How a bullet came to be lodged in his thigh was simply one of the mysteries of dueling.

OUSTED VICAR HOLDS SERVICE UNDER TREE

'Irregular' Marriage Is Reason Given by English Bishop

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Rev. Edmund Christopher Hudson, the Socialist vicar of Sutton Cheney, near Muncaton, who was forbidden to perform the duties of his office—on the ground that he had contracted an irregular marriage," his lawful wife being alive, was locked out of his church last Sunday.

His reply was to preach among the tombstones. The services in the church were conducted, by order of the bishop of Peterborough, by the Rev. J. W. Talbot, the patron who nominated Mr. Hudson to the living.

Precautions had been taken to prevent Mr. Hudson from gaining possession of the church. The old locks were all removed and new ones fixed, and policemen were stationed at the main entrance to prevent disorder.

The inhibited vicar marched at the head of a crowd of curious sightseers from all over the midlands to a giant tree in the churchyard, and there, standing on a chair, he went through a form of morning prayer. He began his "sermon" with the words:

"It is contrary to English principles to condemn a man before he has stated his case, but this morning they have deprived me of my church, and some one else is officiating there."

ESTABLISH WOMAN LABOR EXCHANGES

English Institution Assists Femininity to Secure Respectable Employment

MOVEMENT SHOWS PROGRESS

Attitude of Large Manufacturers and Employers Especially Encouraging

LONDON, Oct. 1.—With nearly half a year's working experience behind, and the forming of plans for autumn and winter developments in the course of working, the moment is opportune for reviewing the position of the Women's Labor exchanges established by the board of trade to deal with some of the problems as to employment in England. Less, perhaps, has been heard of this side of the work than that of the men, but it has shown progress and illustrated social forces in its own particular way, and at this juncture the attitude of large manufacturers and employers of female labor is especially encouraging. The winter demands in the clothing trade begin to call for augmented staffs, and one great West-end house alone has intimated to the central offices of the women's branch at Caxton House that it will be prepared to engage through it 250 skilled tailoresses, machinists and similar workers. Other firms also promise a number of situations, showing that employers as well as workers begin to realise its value as a medium for satisfying their requirements.

In the months of February and March, when the scheme got into full working order, by far the preponderating number of situations filled came under the heading of "domestic (outdoor)," or, in plainer terms, char women. They were respectively 715 and 1251, the next highest concerned with dress being 220 and 209, out of totals of 2923 and 3023 for whom employment was found. In the latest returns just made up, which are for June, the places filled amounted to 7370, and there is a notable and striking increase in the sections of textiles and dress, in shop assistants in the dressing of furs, feathers and hair, and in various other directions. The charwomen are still very numerous, but in these latter weeks that is very largely explained by the action of the laundry exchange. For such work the applicants were very numerous, and the exchange made careful inquiries as to their general standard of capabilities.

The Scottish woman is usually pretty good at this kind of work, and when the exchange was satisfied that it had a number to be recommended a carefully worded circular was sent to the middle class householders. As a result the exchange was simply bombarded with applications for such helpers, and for some days was occupied in arranging the rota for 180 women, so that Mrs. A. might always secure her Treasure on Tuesdays and Mrs. B. on Thursdays, while Miss Z. of the apartment house wanted her Wednesdays and Saturdays. Some enterprise of the kind it is hoped to undertake during the winter in London, though curiously enough a tentative effort made in one district—it was perhaps rather too fashionable to need these humbler domestic aids—was by no means encouraging.

There are now 100 exchanges open, and in the north especially good service has been done in transferring women from centers in which work was slack to those where labor is wanted. Thus in Leeds not long since there was a surplus of women in the ready-made clothing trade, but factories were springing up in other outlying places where rents and rates were lower. Not only did the local exchange make known among the women where work was to be found, but it sent an experienced lady to each of these centers to see what respectable lodgings would be available and the average cost of rooms, food, fuel and so forth. The employers were really grateful to the exchange, not only for sending hands to them, but for this practical concern for their welfare, and not a single complaint was made by them. It is a general experience of the exchanges that there are not enough thoroughly skilled hands to meet the wants of employers. Requests are constantly made by West End modistes for first-class fitters or machinists; from laundries for ironers equal to getting up the finest lingerie dresses or for others qualified for some highly specialised handicraft, and it is just these that are most difficult to supply.

LABOR PARTY MAY MEET WITH ANNIHILATION

Face Defeat Unless Parliament Passes Remedial Legislation

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Owing to the Osborne judgment of the house of lords in December last, and to recent events arising out of that decision, the Labor party in the house of commons are threatened with practical annihilation at the next general election. This may be taken as an unexaggerated description of the situation, unless parliament can be induced to pass remedial legislation meanwhile; and that, according to the present outlook, would seem to be an almost hopeless contingency.

The Labor party is backed by a parliamentary fund, the objects of which are to assist in paying the election expenses of candidates adopted in accordance with the constitution, to maintain them when elected and to provide the salary and expenses of a national party agent. Affiliated societies contribute to the fund at the rate of 4 cents per member per annum. Candidates, when elected, receive £400 a year, provided their candidatures were promoted by societies contributing to the fund, but societies in arrears with their contributions forfeit their rights under the constitution. Among the contributors was the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, one of whose members, Mr. Osborne, secretary of the Walthamstow branch, objected to be compelled to pay the levy and brought an action to question the title of the society to impose it. The case passed from the high court to the court of appeal, and thence to the house of lords, who decided that trade unions cannot use their funds for the support of representatives on municipal bodies or in parliament. This was the unanimous judgment of the earl of Halsbury, Lord Macnaghten, Lord James, Lord Atkinson and Lord Shaw and is final unless disturbed by legislation.

Such a pronouncement created quite a flutter among the Laborites and, after much deliberation, it was determined at once to lay an amending bill before the house of commons, but after a statement by the attorney general it was decided to abandon the bill.

The judgment of the house of lords only affected the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, but injunctions granted by the high court placed the following unions in the same position: London Society of Compositors, Amalgamated Society of Engineers, Lancashire and Cheshire miners, North Wales miners, South Wales miners, Derbyshire miners, Nottingham miners, Operative Stonemasons, Typographical association, Devonport Government Laborers, United Patternmakers and Northern Counties and Preston Weavers.

The power to enforce compulsion having been destroyed, course was held to voluntary levies, but these proved a ridiculous fiasco. In one society only two members paid the voluntary levy. Under these circumstances the party is facing the future with considerable anxiety.

PARIS IS LOSING HOLD AS CENTER OF FASHION

French Chamber of Commerce at Milan Urges That Berlin May Take Lead

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The old story is being revived that Paris is losing the lead in feminine fashions. The alarm is given this time by the French chamber of commerce in Milan. It seems that Milanese women are no longer enticed to buy by the notice, "Latest Paris models." Paris no longer leads. The first place is being taken, of all capitals in the world, by Berlin. The chamber of commerce in question calls upon the Rue de la Paix to bestir itself lest it be beaten by the Linden. In the meanwhile, the Rue de la Paix, at this time crowded with American buyers come over to pay enormous sums for the models of next winter, if not already of next spring, seems unperturbed by the warning received from the French trade in Milan. At all events, the idea that Berlin should oust Paris is met with derision. It will also be at least doubted politely even by the layman, if he has lived in Berlin. At the present moment why do the wome nall over the world tie their skirts around their ankles? Because it wa sthe Parisienne who first shackled herself. If a Berlin dressmaker had first thought of the trammeled skirt, would the Parisienne ever have worn it?

Some presumptuous man published a list of commandments for wives, one of which ran: "Now and then acknowledge gracefully that thy husband knows more about some things than thou. After all, thou art not infallible." A second and still more daring rule for wives was: "Never be aggressive in thy arguments with thy husband, but always consider him as superior to thee." This was too much for French feminists. One woman answers the presumptuous man indignantly:

"The weaker sex has not merely duties; it has also rights. Feminism is advancing and nothing will stop it. The weaker sex is the equal of the sterner. Equality forever! Here are the commandments which women oppose to those of men."

The woman then gives her rules for husbands with more spirit than logic:

"Woman has a right to have whims; it is a privilege of her sex. Never put her out. She has a right to have hysterics, which would impair her health and cost thee money in doctors' bills.

Another commandment runs:

"Remember, good man, that thy wife is thy superior by her grace, her beauty and refinement. Therefore always worship at her feet."

In another rule the woman seems to show some sly knowledge of her sisters:

"If, good man, thou desirest mountain air, ask thy wife to come to the seaside; she will immediately propose a holiday in Switzerland."

But this is a very mild jibe at her own sex compared with her final thrust at the other in her last rule for husbands:

"Man was created before woman as a preliminary sketch for the masterpiece. Remember, then, O husband, that thou art but a rough draft."

TOWN WANTED CHOLERA DEATH, SAYS TRAVELER

Conditions in Russia Described by Visitor to Parents

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—The author of the following sketch is a native of the Don Cossack country, who quitted St. Petersburg a few weeks ago to pay a visit to his birthplace, which is fifteen miles beyond the town of Novocherkassk. In Novocherkassk he found the cholera. Before taking horses to push on farther, he questioned a Cossack: "Is there any sign of cholera in my village?" "No, none." "Good."

"I then had the horses harnessed and set out on my home journey. On the way I fell into conversation with the driver. 'Any cholera in the villages about?' I asked. 'No. I've heard of none.'

"We soon entered my village. My father and mother were at home. They welcomed me with extreme heartiness, and then remarked: 'So you were not afraid to come to us?' 'No, not I. But what is there to be afraid of?' 'Why, the cholera, of course,' replied my father. 'We have it here strong and malignant. At most it lasts an hour and a half and then it leaves you to the grave digger. Nobody recovers. Every mother's son who falls ill dies. They built a hospital, but it's empty. It closed all of a sudden; no warning, no premonitory tokens. A man is walking in the street, thinking of nothing in particular, he drops, begins to writhe, and an hour later he is dead, stone dead.'

"'Well, but what are the doctors doing?' I asked. 'The doctors?' replied my father, 'There are no doctors about. Our village numbers 8000 souls, and it has but one medical attendant and no doctor. Their people are carried off in a day.'

"'And how long has this been going on?' I asked. 'About a month,' answered my father. 'And do you mean to say that during all that time they have taken no measures of precaution or prevention?' 'I've heard of none. One day a doctor did come and look. But he only said that this was a particular kind of cholera, aggravated with typhoid fever. He called it "lightning cholera," and then he left.'

"'Well, and how about the people?' I asked. 'Oh, they're all right. Quiet! You see, they've all been to confession and communion together with their superiors, and all the 8000 are now awaiting the end calmly. As you noticed, the streets are deserted. The people are all indoors expecting death.'

"Just then we heard the church bell tolling. 'What's that?' I inquired. 'That means,' explained my father, 'that another Cossack has been struck down. And the bell is tolling like that all day long.'"

IRISH LANDLORDS SHOW LIBERALITY

Lord Charles Beresford Says Estate Owners Work for Ireland's Benefit

DUBLIN, Oct. 1.—Viscount Middleton, presiding at the annual meeting in Dublin of the Irish Land Owners' convention, said for five and twenty years he had been engaged in a long struggle for the protection of the interests of Irish land owners and for the general advantage of those connected with land in Ireland. They hoped that they were now at the last phase of the three great phases of Irish land legislation, with which they had been grappling for the past forty years. If a stranger who had been accustomed to walk about this country in the seventies now went about it, he could not deny that there had been an immense advance in the comfort and prosperity of the people and their dwellings. Joint stock banks showed an increase of $110,000,000 in money deposited since 1861, or 77 per cent, and the savings banks, which had only $15,000,000 deposited in 1861, now showed $85,000,000, an increase of $50,000,000, or 254 per cent.

Now, when a continual outcry was being made that England was being forced to pay for the emancipation of Ireland from the landlords, and when the newspapers were flooded with figures to show what the contribution of England had been to the Irish exchequer and Irish expenditure, there should be put side by side with it the fact that under these acts the landlords of Ireland had contributed a fair quota of $10,000,000. He could not help thinking that $10,000,000 a year out of a rental of $25,000,000 was a colossal sacrifice, and it had been exacted by the conscience of the nation from the pockets of its most loyal subjects.

From first to last they had done their best as a convention to co-operate with the government in the practical carrying out of these land acts, the justice of which they had good cause to protest against. A remarkable situation had arisen. They found themselves by force of circumstances drawn nearer to a large section of those who desired also to see the completion of these acts. The convention was going to urge, and on no personal grounds, the continuance of the interrupted system of land purchase. The demand for land purchase never came from the landlords. In the first instance it came from the representatives of the tenants backed by the representations of the English people, who saw what they believed to be a way out of trouble in Ireland. It had been adopted by the landlords in deference to the national demand upon them.

They were bound to keep before the public the fact that the completion of land purchase, now that it had been entered upon, was essential to the peace of Ireland, because it was impossible to have a large number of people living side by side with those who had purchased without some feeling of trouble and discontent. If the government would only join with the landlord class in fairly administering the acts which had been passed, give those facilities for land purchase which the landlords desired, and in the west try to make a settlement which would be permanent, they might make much more progress in the next ten years than had been made in the past.

The earl of Donoughmore moved the following resolution:

"That we regard the interruption of land purchase negotiations by the act of 1909 as disastrous to the peace and contentment of this country, and we trust that all classes connected with land in Ireland will unite in urging upon the government and parliament the necessity of immediately amending those provisions of that act which have produced this result, and of reverting to the methods of the act of 1903."

His lordship said that at the present moment there was no need to argue the necessity for the progress of land purchase in Ireland. Every government had proclaimed its anxiety to pursue that policy; it was only the present government that had dealt it a most deadly blow. Under the act of last year sales had proceeded at the rate of $75,000 a month, against $5,150,000 a month under the act of 1903. He protested against the absolute stoppage that had taken place by the action of the government and nobody else.

Col. Saunderson Knox-Gore, D. L., seconded.

Lord Charles Beresford said it was perfectly plain that the land acts had been of benefit to everybody in the country. He had been out of the country for a long time, and on his return had been amazed at the difference in its prosperity so far as its agricultural interests were concerned. He maintained that that prosperity had been brought about by the land acts. The landlords of Ireland had often been held up to the public gaze as a selfish people. That was unfair and unjust. They had not worked so much for themselves as for the benefit of the country. No class in the country had been mulcted to such an extent, and now they were prepared to accept any suggestions that the government might make in furtherance of the act of 1903, which had been pulverized by the act of 1909.

PARISIAN WOMEN ROB PROVINCIAL OF $10,000

Take Big Sum in Bank Notes and Leave Victim in Room

PARIS, Oct. 1.—This is the season when curious country cousins come to Paris and do strange things. A gentleman just arrived from Lille seems to be of a guileless nature. Having to pay a bill here of $10,000 for agricultural machinery bought by him he never thought of merely bringing his check book, but brought fifty 1000-franc banknotes in his pocketbook, and having reached Paris went instantly to dine at Montmartre. It seems hardly wise to dine at Montmartre with $10,000 in one's pocket, but it was still less wise to ask two ladies who were sitting next to him and said they were dressmakers to dine with him. The least wise thing of all was, having paid a large bill and exhibited in the process the roll of banknotes, to accept an invitation to tea with the ladies. They took him to what one of them said was her flat, and tea was made.

The gentleman from Lille had no sooner sipped his cup when he fell asleep. He awoke late the next morning still dazed by the narcotic poured into his tea, and found himself alone, minus the ladies and minus his pocketbook, in a furnished room in a lodging house, for the rent of which a bill was presented to him. But the ingenuous gentleman was luckier than he deserved. He told the police that one of the thieves wore a bangle with a lucky gold pig having two ruby eyes. A detective that very day traced the lady with the lucky pig, which proved unlucky for her, and met her and her friend outside the Scarlet Windmill, just as they were hailing a taxicab. He said, "Allow me to escort you, ladies," and when they had all three got in, told the man to drive to the police headquarters. The two ladies are now at Saint Lazare jail. On one of them was found the pocketbook, still containing $8000. What she had done with the missing $2000 since the night before she refused to say.

CLAIMS FACE'S EXPRESSION SHOULD REVEAL SOUL

Dancer Says Beauty Alone Not Attractive

LONDON, Oct. 1.—According to Mlle. Badet, a dancer whose poses are now the talk of London, even the minor details of life can be given a dramatic touch if women would only realize the latent histrionic talent which they all possess.

Mlle. Badet's theory is that every word spoken by woman should be accompanied by a gesture and facial expression which reveal her soul.

"It is not beauty that makes a woman attractive," she said. "It is her grace and her charm and this all can cultivate. Not only can we do so, it is our duty.

"A woman who does not study her eyes, her voice, her smile, her every gesture is not worthy the name. She may be everything, but she is not a woman.

"You will say some women are so plain and so unattractive that it would be useless for them to try to become otherwise. I reply, Nature never intended that a single woman should be plain or unattractive.

"There have been women in all ages who have excelled in charm. They are the queens of this world and it is not strange that they have been adored, but why should we not at least try to imitate them?"

DIES BY BLOWS OF ROBBERS.

GROCER ASSAULTED BY TWO MEN IN STORE.

Although Victim Begs of Them Not to Hurt Him and Offers to Turn Over All Money in the Place They Knock Him Into Unconsciousness.

Held up by two young men with a small hand ax, J. H. Felter, 59 years old, who conducted a grocery store at No. 1601 East Twenty-fifth st., was struck on the head and died in the receiving hospital Saturday night. The police have the description of the two young men suspected and it is hoped that they will be apprehended soon.

Late in the afternoon, the two young men entered the store and, walking to the back part demanded that Felter turn over what money he had to them. Felter held up his hands and told them not to hurt him and he would give them all the money he had in the store.

One of the two leaned over the counter and, despite Felter's pleadings that they take the money and not harm him, struck him viciously over the head, knocking him unconscious. The door leading to the basement was open and the men dragged him to the stairway and then kicking him saw him fall down the stairway.

Felter kept a large amount of money in a tin can under the counter. The money was taken and the can later found by the police in the alley in the rear. The cash register containing about $15 was not touched.

In front of the store and witnessing the attack upon Felter stood a large number of small boys and their screams attracted the police.

Felter was found in the basement and hurried to the receiving hospital in a police automobile patrol but he was too far gone and died without regaining consciousness.

Esther Martin, living at No. 1334 East Twenty-fifth street, is said to have been an intimate friend of one of the robbers. She is held as a witness.

"THE FASHION SHOW."

Rev. Dr. Brougher Preaches at Temple Baptist Auditorium on "How to Dress Properly."

Rev. Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher preached at Temple Baptist Auditorium last night on the subject "The Fashion Show," or "How to Dress properly." He took his text from Matt. 22: 11 and 12: "And when the king came in to behold the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment, and he said unto him, 'Friend, how camest thou in thither not having a wedding garment?' And he was speechless."

"In this parable," said Dr. Brougher: "We find a man who was not properly dressed. The question of dress has been a serious one ever since the day that Adam and Eve discovered their lack of clothing. Probably no subject—unless it is the question of what we eat and drink—occupies the attention of men and women more than the subject of dress. Jesus Christ recognized this fact, and in His great Sermon on the Mount warned against worry about dress.

"As a matter of fact, dress has a vital relation to the welfare of mankind. It is related to the development of men and women physically mentally and spiritually. A person's clothes, in the first place, should meet the needs of the body. They concern the health, comfort and ornamentation of the body. All dress should be healthful. When we study the fashion plates or look in at the store windows, we certainly cannot deny that much of the effort of society is not to produce clothes that are healthful and comfortable, but rather stylish and startling.

"Many people think the minister should have a distinctive garb. Under some circumstances this might be true, but to most preachers today, manhood is more sacred than ministerial office, and they are not willing to have a line of demarkation between themselves and their fellow men. In this daily touch with man and women, the preacher wants to meet them on common ground of dress, as well as thought. A man's clothing has little to do with the message he delivers. It is the man that counts, and not the material he wears; it is character, and not clothes."

SCHOOL'S BIG DEAL.

Heinrich von Stein Leases Hellman Mansion for His Academy, for Term of Years.

Heinrich Von Stein, president and director of the Von Stein Academy, has just made one of the largest transactions in the history of Western art institutions.

He has leased for five years, for the purposes of his music school, the Hellman residence at Tenth and Hill streets. The deal was directly between Mr. Von Stein and Marco Hellman, and the rental is said to be of increasing nature and of a substantial figure to begin with.

Reconstruction for the purposes of the school will be commenced today, and Mr. Von Stein hopes to install his faculty in its new quarters the later part of this month.

The building, as remodelled, will contain twenty-six class rooms, in which the large faculty will instruct the 700 pupils now claimed by the institution. A distinguished Russian pianist is on the way from St. Petersburg to head the piano faculty.

An order for thirty-five new pianos, said to be the largest single demand ever made by a music school in the west, has just been placed by Mr. Von Stein.

The new quarters of the Academy will delay the proposed conservatory building on the school's lot at Seventeenth and Georgia streets for the stated number of years.

SORROW FOR PASTORS.

Methodist Conference in Fresno Adopts Resolutions of Sympathy for Bereaved Ones.

FRESNO, Oct. 2.—The news of the destruction of the Los Angeles Times Building brought sorrow to the men of the Methodist conference. Early in yesterday's session W. E. Tilroe of the Boyle Heights church asked to be excused from further attendance on the session of the conference. Holding a telegram in his hand he gained the floor and said: "Four of my Official Board were in that building. One of them is dead—I do not know about the others." He was excused and left for Los Angeles on the first train out of Fresno.

Dr. Locke of First Church spoke next and, in offering a resolution, said that a number of the young men of his church are on The Times. The resolution adopted unanimously was as follows:

"Having learned of the horrible catastrophe which occurred last night in Los Angeles causing the destruction of the Los Angeles Times Building, as members of the Southern California Conference, without reference to the causes, of which we are not appraised, we wish to express our sincerest sympathy for those who have been suddenly bereaved or injured or have been made to suffer losses of life or property by this direful disaster."

THE OIL BOOK

An Authority on California Oil Sent Free Upon Request

The issue of September 19th contains particulars regarding one of the most important California oil companies ever incorporated.

Important because of the established, producing, profitable properties we have.

Important because of the character of the men who have founded the company and who will manage its affairs.

Important because these men are known practically the world over—are men of great business ability, connected in executive capacity with large and successful business enterprises and financial institutions.

The founding of this company marks a new epoch in the already great oil industry of the Golden State because it brings into the oil industry of California men of national and international prominence, who have thoroughly examined the properties and satisfied themselves of their value and earning power before investing their capital and incorporating the company.

Everyone should read "The Oil Book" of September 19th, especially the article entitled "OIL WORLD'S GREATEST FUEL, SAYS ADMIRAL ROBLEY D. EVANS."

Probably no man is better qualified to speak on that subject, and certainly no one is better qualified to speak of the value of oil as fuel for the navies of the world. Admiral Evans' trip through the oil fields, accompanied by his distinguished associates, is fully described in that issue and has a greater significance for the oil industry of California than any other incident in its history.

"The Oil Book" has always been a most valuable publication, dealing as it does with every phase of the industry. It grows more and more interesting with each issue and should be read by everyone. Send for it today.

PROFIT

AND security are the vital points in every investment—and for generous profits and good, solid, substantial security—no investment in Los Angeles today, can surpass stock in the Investment Building Company—at $1.25 per share.

In view of the remarkable progress this well-managed co-operative homebuilding company has made—in view of its extensive assets—perfect system, experience, ability, reputation, and brilliant future possibilities—stock at $1.25 per share is almost absurdly low. Ask any of our stockholders if they would accept $1.25 per share for THEIR stock. Not ONE of THEM would release a dollar's worth of stock except at a handsome premium.

NOW'S the time to secure an allotment of this generous dividend-paying stock. The longer you wait—the more you'll pay for the stock. Can you imagine a more practical—a more attractive investment than one in which your principal as well as the interest rate constantly INCREASES in value? That's the characteristic of Investment Building Company stock that has made it so valuable to conservative, discriminating investers throughout the Southwest.

Get our illustrated booklet—which explains our entire system of co-operative homebuilding and selling.

PUBLIC MEETING IS CALLED BY POMONA COMMITTEE.

Freeholders' Charters of Various Cities Have Been Examined With View to Learning Which Will Best Suit Needs of Town—Explosion Victim Man of Prominence.

POMONA, Oct. 2.—A public meeting will be held at the Fraternal Aid Theatre, Tuesday evening, when the special committee of five composed of Messrs. Pitzer, Matthews, Balfour, A. B. Avis and Lobingier, appointed to investigate in other Southern California cities regarding special or freeholders charters, will be prepared to submit an advisory report. The committee has visited Santa Monica, Long Beach, Ocean Park, Pasadena, Riverside, San Bernardino and Redlands, endeavoring to learn what sort of a freeholders' charter will be best suited to the needs of Pomona.

Fred B. Llewellyn, who was killed in the diabolical explosion which wrecked The Times plant early Saturday, while at work as linotype operator, resided here for many years having come from Lyons, N. Y. in 1892. In earlier times he was the most rapid type compositor in Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Llewellyn was for years connected with the Daily Progress here, both in the mechanical and reportorial departments and by his uprightness and diligence won the respect of hosts of friends, who mourn his loss. He was a past master of Pomona Masonic lodge and past patron of the local Eastern Star. In 1902 Mr. Llewellyn married Miss Kathryn Lovey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lovey of North Park avenue, and then made his home in Los Angeles, visiting here frequently. He leaves also an aged father and mother in Lyons and a sister in Rochester, N. Y.

Lee Lockwood, who resisted and beat Officer Chitwood when the former and Mayor Pitzer went in his home on West Ninth street to raid the place, where they believed a "blind pig" was being conducted, has been convicted in a jury trial of assaulting an officer and will be sentenced this week. Mrs. Lockwood will be tried for her participation in the affair, tomorrow. A. J. Lockwood, the father was arrested also, but was subsequently set free.

The building committee of the Pomona Ebell Club, composed of Messrs. Brady, Green, Avis, Graham, Loud, Davis and Minier, is making elaborate preparations for the opening events of the new $9000 clubhouse being completed at the corner of Gray avenue and Pearl street. Daily Beauty Hint: The eyes should receive especial care not only for beauty's sake, but for their preservation and for that of the general health. The rose-basil treatment will be found of much benefit. Combine one gill of rose-water and one of witch-hazel, shake well and heat to a boiling point. Dip two small pads of absorbent cotton into the fragrant liquid and place over the eyes. Recline if possible. When the little compresses begin to cool, moisten again in the warm liquid and continue the treatment for half or quarter of an hour.

Because the eyes are slow to enter their complaint, we are apt to abuse these faithful members. Many times some other parts of the body must sound the alarm in their defense. The head will set up an ache, the stomach will rebel, as the entire nervous system will assert the need for resting and caring for the eyes, before we notice that we are over-straining them.

We should watch our eyes and if they are becoming tired, rest them. There are many ways of doing this. It may not always be possible for the worker to lie at ease, and it may even be impossible to take time to close the eyes for longer than a moment, but this moment will help. If doing close work upon book or typewriter, stop for just an instant now and then and look out of a window. This changes the focus of the vision and benefits the eyes. If no window is at hand, look across the room or as far as it is possible to glance. If wearing glasses take them off for a moment occasionally. Just a glimpse of the everlasting hills, close work, helps. If you can do so, a real play-time secured for the eyes, at least once a day, will repay you in benefit to the body, brain and soul. It is wonderful what an uplift is given to the whole being, by just glimpse of the everlasting hills, or the greenery of far fields. A trip to the end of a car line, to a point where the vision is unimpeded, is sometimes a thorough "beauty treatment" and for only 10 cents!

In keeping watch of the eyes, it is a good plan to place before your mirror where they will become a part of yourself, absorbed through the sight, a few simple rules.

Don't rub your eyes when you first awaken in the morning.
Don't read or write on a moving train.
Don't read with your head lowered.
Don't wear dotted veils.
Don't squint.
Don't read facing the light.
Don't fail to give your eyes rest and recreation.

I am not certain but that I would place first the "don't" regarding the veils. There is no doubt that many eyes are injured in trying to dodge the dots upon a veil. Dotted and figured veils are pretty, I know, and sometimes becoming, and so they are apt to tempt us; but never do I believe in sacrificing health or fitness, even to, our friend, Dame Fashion.

The eye-cup should form a part of the toilet equipment of every person who really respects her eyes. This simple means of cleansing and refreshing the eyes, is indispensable.

Gymnastics are also favored by some, for the eyes as well as for other parts of the body. To raise, to lower, to turn the eyes within the narrow limits of their sockets, seems a reasonable means of strengthening their muscles and nerves, but such exercises should be carefully pursued and discontinued if there seems the least danger of strain.

Old Dutch.

In nothing connected with the household is reliability and genuine worth more to be considered than in silverwars. There are so many imitations and they look so well, masquerade in such veri-similitude of the genuine, that almost the only way of, being certain is to buy from a reliable house.

One of the Broadway jewelry establishments is showing at present, some handsome articles in old Dutch reproductions. No silversmiths, in the history of this art have been more noted for their masterpieces in solid silver than have the Dutch. In addition to the genuinely fine workmanship in these articles, there is a quaintness of shape and decoration, unlike any other similar ware.

It is a genuine pleasure to possess such ware. The local house imports directly from the native smiths.

A Clever Advertisement.

Did you notice in the Sunday Times an advertisement reading, "Look how the prices are hobbled!" and beside it a woman's figure made from pots and pans? It struck me as really clever.

Belated Bits.

Some parts of the Fashion Show did not arrive in time and have now "come to town." One of the Broadway stores has received a fine collection of imported evening gowns since the close of the show and will exhibit them as freely as though they had been a part of that great feast for feminine eyes.

Another Window Show.

A Broadway window containing a collection of bric-a-brac is a show in itself. Such bronzes, in the way of electroliers and jardinieres, such marbles, cloisonnes and satsumas are worth a special trip down town to see.

MORE WORK FOR POLICE.

All Vacations Cancelled, and Hours of Duty Increased From Eight to Twelve.

The need of a large number of men on both the detective and police forces as a result of the Times Building outrage resulted yesterday afternoon in Capt. Lehnhuser of the Central Division issuing an order cancelling all vacations which were to be allowed the men.

This order will stand until further notice, and nothing but sickness will excuse any member of either force from duty.

The number of men in the department is not deemed sufficient to handle the work at the present time and the hours of duty have been increased from eight to twelve, this change to remain in effect until further notice.

AUTOMATIC KILLING.

Man Showing New Pistol to Friends Accidentally Kills His Brother and Is Arrested.

While showing a new automatic pistol to friends, Julian Martinez, living at Fifty-third and Alameda streets accidentally discharged the weapon and killed his brother Crinceata who was standing in front of it. Julian was locked up on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

According to the police report, the men were careless in handling the weapon and the accidental discharge took place while they were trying to load it.

SICK ON THE WAY.

While enroute from San Diego to Victoria, B. C., to collect the pension due him as a veteran of the Boer War, William Young, former soldier in the British army, was taken sick and stopped in Los Angeles for treatment in the Receiving Hospital. He is expected to be in condition to resume his journey today.

H. J. TILLOTSON, M. D.
Consultant.

I am the only specialist in Los Angeles who is sole owner of his office and equipment, who does not advertise a fictitious name and photograph.

I publish my true photograph, record cards, diplomas and license, also the license of my associates, as medical practitioners and private surgeons, under which I operate, a combination unknown in this city. I am the only specialist who can operate, a colorado specialist, the only one who treats patients personally. I personally treat and prescribe for each case and consult with no other physician, and should not be classed with quacks who claim to be the only one cured by a specialist, and who do not publish their records, and who are not willing to submit to examination by medical committees, and who are not willing to give you a written guarantee. Many of these quacks are not graduates of medicine, and many are not graduates of anything, and many have been expelled from medical societies, and many have been convicted in courts of law, and many have been imprisoned for violation of the medical practice act. Many of these quacks are not graduates of medicine, and many are not graduates of anything, and many have been expelled from medical societies, and many have been convicted in courts of law, and many have been imprisoned for violation of the medical practice act. Many of these quacks are not graduates of medicine, and many are not graduates of anything, and many have been expelled from medical societies, and many have been convicted in courts of law, and many have been imprisoned for violation of the medical practice act.

A thorough investigation should be made by every man who has any of these troubles, and I will be glad to have any of them investigate my methods and my claims. I do not ask you to call and then refuse to tell you what I can do for you, but I do ask you to call and those who do call will be convinced that I have the best medical attainments, the ability and I can give you the surest, quickest and most satisfactory treatment for the least money consistent with honest and conscientious work. If you have delayed treatment because you have been unable to obtain it by any fault with the physician you have had, or because you have been unable to raise the money, or because you have been afraid to let your friends know what was the matter with you, or because you have been afraid of the expense, or because you have been afraid of the pain, or because you have been afraid of the result, or because you have been afraid of the cost, or because you have been afraid of the time it would take, or because you have been afraid of the inconvenience, or because you have been afraid of the publicity, or because you have been afraid of the disgrace, or because you have been afraid of the shame, or because you have been afraid of the humiliation, or because you have been afraid of the embarrassment, or because you have been afraid of the loss of time, or because you have been afraid of the loss of money, or because you have been afraid of the loss of position, or because you have been afraid of the loss of friends, or because you have been afraid of the loss of reputation, or because you have been afraid of the loss of character, or because you have been afraid of the loss of everything that is dear to you, then you should call at once, for I can cure you and restore you to perfect health, regardless of the cause, or of how long you have suffered, or of how many doctors you have had, or of how much money you have spent, or of how much you have suffered, or of how much you have lost, or of how much you have been afraid of, or of how much you have been ashamed of, or of how much you have been humiliated, or of how much you have been embarrassed, or of how much you have been afraid of the result, or of how much you have been afraid of the cost, or of how much you have been afraid of the time it would take, or of how much you have been afraid of the inconvenience, or of how much you have been afraid of the publicity, or of how much you have been afraid of the disgrace, or of how much you have been afraid of the shame, or of how much you have been afraid of the humiliation, or of how much you have been afraid of the embarrassment, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of time, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of money, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of position, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of friends, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of reputation, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of character, or of how much you have been afraid of the loss of everything that is dear to you.

READ MY BOOK, "Diseases of Men," which I will send free, sealed, upon application. It contains information every young man, husband and father should have. Office Hours: 9 a. m. to 12 M., 1 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. Sundays, 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Call or write before treating for cheaper or inferior methods. Consultation and Examination Free.

Cured In

Three Days

This is the Gatlin Institute's eleventh year. Thousands of men and women have taken the Gatlin treatment. There has been failure to cure in no case.

The Gatlin treatment is administered under a plain, legal contract to cure any case satisfactorily in three days. Any expressed dissatisfaction on leaving the institute means that the full fee paid will be refunded.

No Hypodermic Injections, No Poisonous Drugs Therefore, No Bad After-Effects

Hypodermic injections are dangerous—can and do cause blood poisoning, abscesses, paralysis and atrophy. There are no hypodermic injections with the Gatlin treatment, and only three days' time against from 28 to 42 by injection methods.

HOME TREATMENT

The Gatlin Home treatment is for those who cannot come to the institute for three days. It is just as efficient as institute treatment if simple directions are followed.

Call, telephone or write for particulars.

The Gatlin Home Treatment carries the same contract to cure.

Call, phone or write for book giving full particulars, copies of contract, etc.

COMPLAIN OF SEWAGE.

Residents of Chinatown Make Vigorous Protest Against Drainage Conditions in That Quarter.

A vigorous protest is being raised by residents of Chinatown to the inadequate sewage system existing in that part of the city. According to the colestials the sewage pipes fail to carry away the surplus storm water, during the winter months and as a result it backs up over the sidewalks and into yards and cellars, breeding disease and causing no end of trouble.

The sewer system throughout Chinatown is of the most antique character. The drain pipes are entirely too small for the service demanded of them, and throughout the winter months cause no end of trouble to attaches of the sewer department. The soil throughout Chinatown is adobe, and the storm water collecting on the surface becomes stagnant, causing vile odors to arise. In addition to this the Chinese are none too careful in the disposition of their garbage, and frequently the police are called upon to report a disease breeding nuisance to the Board of Health.

Within a few days a written protest against the sewage conditions will be presented by the celestials to the City Council. The protest has the support of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and other Chinese organizations. Several local physicians who practice in Chinatown will lend their influence for better sanitary conditions. The protest has been signed by every merchant in the Oriental quarter. It is held that the expenditure of a few thousands of dollars in enlarging the sewage mains, and installing new storm drains for the surface water will better conditions materially.

IRISH PAIR WIN ESTATE.

Property of San Diego Bachelor Is Awarded to Elizabeth and Michael McGurck.

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 2.—A decree by Judge Guy in the Superior Court yesterday morning gives to Elizabeth and Michael McGurck the entire $200,000 estate of Edward McGurck, their half-brother, who died in this city three years ago.

Edward McGurck, a nephew, who was the son of Owen McGurck, brother of the deceased Edward McGurck, was also named as one of the heirs. The nephew died in San Diego last May. Before his death he assigned to Michael McGurck his entire interest in the estate. The court approved the assignment and declared that Michael is entitled to two-thirds and that Elizabeth is entitled to one-third. All other claimants are denied any portion of the property.

A petition for distribution is being prepared action on the same to be taken by the court at a later date. The property consists of real estate in the city of San Diego and several hundred acres of ranch land.

The case has been in the local courts two years. Over 100 persons put in claims. The half brother and sister, who are made wealthy by the court's decree, are residents of Clohogue, Newry Ireland.

LOOKING TO THE LIVING.

The public mind is not wholly given to vengeance for the terrible crime and the intended crimes that were frustrated. Attention has turned to the relief of the families of those who were made victims of the midnight assassin. Officially the Mayor and the Council have asked contributions to a relief fund and the Mayor has designated ten receivers for it.

A further precaution will be taken. The Council will be asked today to provide an increase of 200 men in the police force. This is not an emergency request. The patrolmen are needed all over the city and have been needed for years because while the city has grown by leaps and bounds the guardians of peace and safety have multiplied by stingy numbers under the spur of some imminent danger.

At the Council session yesterday provision was made for an immediate increase of forty patrolmen, ten sergeants and one lieutenant. The Police Commission was unable to appoint more than twenty-one last night, be-

HOPE THAT W

Unearthing of the Law's

OAKLAND, Oct. 2.—Captain of Detectives Walter Petersen stated tonight that he had information which caused him to believe that the plot to dynamite The Los Angeles Times building was hatched in Oakland.

Capt. Petersen would not say what he had learned but acknowledged that he had telegraphed to the Los Angeles police and that he had received responses from them in the matter which supported his belief.

Capt. Petersen is now actively engaged in following his clews and expects developments in a day or two.

The sure hand of the law has ceased to grope. The searchlight of detective intelligence is at work, and union-ridden San Francisco must give up its assassins. The martyrs of The Times disaster will be avenged. Information received last night from the Golden Gate region indicates that it may be but a day until the dastards who composed the expedition of ruin and death with dynamite are before the bar of justice.

The officials are moving with great secrecy, but with unexpected progress. The tremendous rewards offered—aggregating in excess of $200,000—by the aroused and determined populace of Los Angeles, are stimulating the hunt, and have resulted in much valuable information reaching the army of skilled officials.

Not since the anarchist plots of 1886 has such a conspiracy been unearthed. Its ramifications are large and its scope greater than appeared from the discoveries made here. The facts now in the police hopper have turned out, through the intelligent separation of fact from fiction, a cohesive story of the outlines of the conspiracy. But the police are not giving up the precious truths that mean so much to their ultimate success.

A CIVIC AWAKENING.

Yesterday was an awakening for the civic conscience. After the shock of the terrible disaster had abated, and calmness returned; after the indisputable evidence of its diabolical character had been shown, the people of Los Angeles sent forth a determined demand for the guilty.

The Council led with an offer of $10,000 for the arrest and conviction of each guilty man; the Supervisors of Los Angeles county offered a reward of $5000 for each conviction, and both official bodies are prepared to spend $150,000 each to insure justice to the martyred dead and an outraged community.

And this is not all. In two hours Secretary Eschandelaar of the Manufacturers' and Manufacturers' Association, undaunted by bombs and threats, procured the first $25,000 of a reward fund that the business men of Los Angeles will offer, and which may reach $100,000 before the week ends if the criminals are not, as is expected, apprehended before then.

Back of all this is a providential fund of $1,000,000 for the defense of Los Angeles against further depredation of the union malefactors, and which will be increased if it becomes necessary. The calamity by which the dastards hoped to establish unionism on a throne of terror and blood has worked a revolution that will end unionism here forever. But no chance will be taken, and the giant defensive fund is to insure that desirable end.

But above and beyond the practical provisions is the firm will of a great populace to whom liberty is more than wealth or power. That is the gain of twenty-one martyred lives.
